Five Members Quit In Slap at de Gaulle

(Times News Service)
PARIS—President de Gaulle's government split apart on the issue of European union today as all five cabinet ministers belonging to the Popular Republican Party abruptly resigned.

Pierre Pflimlin, national chairman of the Catholic Movement Republican Populaire and a staunch advocate of close European union, led the MRP ministers out of the cabinet headed by Premier Georges Pompidou in protest against de Gaulle's European policies as expressed by the French president at his press conference Tuesday.

The cabinet had 29 members including the premier. A joint statement from the MRP ministers said a caucus Tuesday night decided to ask Pompidou to transmit their resignations to de Gaulle.

The surprise move was a severe slap at de Gaulle. It came on the eve of a four-day trip through central France which de Gaulle has scheduled.

Besides Pflimlin, the ministers who resigned were Maurice Schumann, minister delegate; Robert Buron, minister of public works and transports; Paul Bacon, labor minister; and Joseph Fontanet, public health minister.

Pflimlin was state minister, a rank equivalent to deputy premier, in charge of co-operation with African states.

ISSUE STATEMENT

The five ministers called on de Gaulle this morning in advance of a regular cabinet session. They met with the president for half an hour to inform him of their decision, then left the Elysee Palace without attending the cabinet meeting.

A joint statement from the MRP ministers referred to de Gaulle's press conference statements on European policy.

It said:

"Yesterday's press conference revealed essential differences between the concepts of Gen. de Gaulle on the orientation and aims of European policy, and the ideas to which they (the MRP ministers) are attached, and these differences will not permit them to remain in the government."

"De Gaulle at his press conference reiterated his opposition to the supranational framework for European unity strongly favored by the MRP.

Under such a supranational system, most decisions in a European union would be taken by majority vote of the member nations. But de Gaulle told the press conference Europe's nationalistic states should learn to live together in a loose confederation and later tighten their organization.

TROUBLES AHEAD?

The MRP decision was the first crack in the government formed just a month ago by Pompidou. It foreshadowed difficulties for Pompidou in the National Assembly, many of whose members oppose the new premier because he is not a member of the assembly.

De Gaulle said the future of Europe is based on Franco-German solidarity.

He leaves tonight on his first provincial tour of the year, which will officially begin Thursday when his train arrives at Figeac. He will return to Paris Sunday night.

NEW NUCLEAR TESTS READIED BY RUSSIANS

VARNA, Bulgaria (AP)—Premier Khrushchev said today the Soviet Union is preparing a new series of nuclear tests in answer to recent United States shots in the atmosphere.

The Soviet leader made the statement to Western correspondents covering his state visit to Bulgaria.

PHILIP DRESSED DOWN BY TOP TRIPE DRESSER

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP)—The tripe dressers of Britain are annoyed with Prince Philip. He had told newspapermen in Montreal Monday that if they write that his work as chairman of The Second Commonwealth Study Conference is "tripe" that's legitimate criticism.

"This is the third time he has talked like this—it has got to stop," said Bob Hulme, former president of Britain's National Association of Tripe Dressers.

"Tripe is not a joke. It is a valuable foodstuff. And its standing is not helped by slipshod talk like this."

Hulme said he will ask a tripe dressers' conference in Manchester next week to adopt a resolution urging the prince not to use tripe again in a derogatory sense.

'I'm Responsible' Salan Tells Court

PARIS (Reuters)—Raoul Salan today accepted "complete" responsibility for the activities of the terrorist Secret Army Organization.

The 62-year-old former general stood up on the second day of his trial here and declared in a preliminary statement to the high military court:

"I am the chief of the OAS (Secret Army). My responsibility therefore is complete. I accept it as I do not intend to break with a line of conduct followed during 42 years of active service."

"I am not a gang leader but a French general of a victorious army, not a defeated army."

After reading a 24-page statement, in which he reviewed events since Dec. 1, 1956, when he took command of the armed forces in Algeria, Salan said:

"I shall henceforth remain silent."

Salan said he "made a mistake" and "fooled the people of Algeria" when he supported President de Gaulle's return to power in 1958 when the Fourth Republic fell over the war against Algerian nationalists.

"To repair this mistake I had to remain in the midst of the people and then to take the leadership of the Secret Army Organization."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is a man "running scared," former Liberal health minister Paul Martin told an audience of 150 at Oak Bay Junior High School Tuesday night.

This would account for his "unworthy comments" last week on Opposition Leader L. B. Pearson's record against Soviet tyranny while Canada's UN representative.

Mr. Martin said the prime minister had violated a treasured heritage of office in attacking Mr. Pearson.

"Recent comments of Mr. Diefenbaker regarding Mr. Pearson and Soviet imperialism and Communist aggression are unworthy of any Canadian, let alone a man who prides himself . . .," said Mr. Martin, his sentence lost amid applause.

"They are indicative of a man who is going to face defeat," he added.

The ex-Liberal minister appeared in support of Victoria candidate Foster Isherwood, coming to the city by charter aircraft after a whirlwind visit to Port Alberni.

Mr. Martin said the prime minister "knew what he was saying was not an accurate representation of the facts," and quoted from the record for more than 12 years at the UN.

MAJOR DETERRENT

He said the Liberal party, under Mr. Pearson and Mr. St. Laurent, was instrumental in the formation of NATO, the single most effective deterrent to Soviet imperialism in eastern Europe.

(Mr. Diefenbaker has since denied that his remarks should have been interpreted widely as a personal criticism of Mr. Pearson's "softness" with Communism.) See story Page 2.

Major Put Bracelet In Briefcase

(See earlier Page 16)

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence alleged today that Maj. William Allan Platt, charged with Indochina gold smuggling, had to help a woman with a parcel of gold en route to South Viet Nam from Laos.

A gold bracelet on her arm was placed in the major's briefcase to reassure the woman who was well unwellly Maj. M. C. Duhaute agreed under cross-examination.

Defence counsel R. K. Laishley suggested that aside from the bracelet, there was also a parcel of gold which Maj. Platt had to carry and which the woman said she would use to pay expenses in Saigon.

Maj. Duhaute said he was not aware of any such package. The woman has been identified only as a Madame Tolmer who was granted free passage on the plane taking Canadian military personnel to Saigon.

'EVERY RIGHT TO LAND' SAYS GREEN

TORONTO (CP)—The United States has every right to land troops in Thailand to protect the country against a Communist threat from neighboring Laos, External Affairs Minister Green said Tuesday night.

"But if they cross into Laos," he said in an interview, "that would be another matter."

"Thailand is a partner with the U.S. in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and the American troops are moving in there at the Thai government's request," he said.

LAOS

'No Strings' On Offer By Leftists

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Laotian neutralist and pro-Communist factions told the International Control Commission today they were willing to enter into negotiations for a coalition government with the rightist regime without conditions.

ICUG Chairman Avtar Singh of India, who flew from the neutralist capital of Khangxay, Central Laos, disclosed this to reporters.

He said the leftists also said they did not intend to enter Houei Sai village, near the Thai border, if rightist troops did not attack.

The leftists also had no objections to the commission, composed of India, Canada and Poland, sending representatives to Houei Sai, but would not say now whether they were prepared to withdraw behind the cease-fire line drawn up last year.

They said they would create a dangerous situation if they entered Houei Sai, Singh added.

Previously the pro-Communists demanded that the key posts of defence and the interior should go to the neutralists before they would enter into negotiations on a coalition.

Hope for a diplomatic settlement in Laos was spurred by Russia's renewed pledge to support a cease-fire and work for creation of an independent neutral government.

Token Troops To Join Forces

(Times News Service)

WASHINGTON—American officials said today the United States has asked its allies in Southeast Asia to join it in sending military forces into Thailand.

They said Australia, New Zealand, Britain, Pakistan and the Philippines had been asked to "consider the dispatch of small forces to take their place alongside U.S. land, sea, and air forces being flown into the area near the border of Laos."

Most of the representatives here of the countries involved were said to have responded favorably to the request. But U.S. officials declined to give their reaction on a country-by-country basis.

MAKE REGIONAL

Allied acceptance of the U.S. proposal would have the effect of giving the operation a regional character and removing some of the element of unilateral-American intervention.

Thailand invited the U.S. forces but also was understood to be willing to receive small elements from other member nations of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

So far as could be learned, the only member of the pact not asked for token forces was France. Gen. Charles de Gaulle's government has consistently refused to endorse allied military action in the area in which Paris has now lost virtually all its influence.

A dozen U.S. Air Force jet fighter bombers flew into Bangkok today as the spearhead of a new U.S. Southeast Asian command to help defend Thailand from any Communist thrust from Laos.

U.S. officials announced that the jets began landing in this pro-Western country as three ships carrying U.S. Marines steamed up the Gulf of Siam toward Bangkok. The Marines will bolster American troops already in Thailand.

It's a Waiting Game For Hockey Franchise

(Special to The Times)

VANCOUVER—Victoria hockey supporters will have to wait a few days to learn more of their chances to obtain a professional club for next season.

A spokesman for the Pacific National Exhibition today described as "very close" three offers to buy Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

PNE directors are expected to take two or three days to make a decision on the offers, all backed by National Hockey League clubs.

One, by Harry Ornest, is supported by Toronto Maple Leafs. If Ornest is successful, it would erase the hopes of a Victoria group bidding for a WHL franchise and counting on the Leafs to supply players.

Four bids were made for the Canucks' franchise, but one was said to be a token offer Kootenay Lake.

Knifer Kills Woman

VANCOUVER (CP)—

Mrs. Juanita Reinhardt, 19, was fatally stabbed while walking near her home in Vancouver's East End early today.

She died in hospital after telling police she did not recognize the man she saw lurking in the darkness about 2:30 a.m. Mrs. Reinhardt, mother of an 18-month-old child, said she ran across the street. The man gave chase and lunged at her with a knife.

The stabbing took place about 10 blocks from the scene of a similar knife attack which took the life of another city mother.

KILLER NEVER FOUND

Mrs. Evelyn Roche, 39, mother of two, was slashed to death in a lane a block from her home on the night of April 3, 1958. She was stabbed five times and the killer was never apprehended. Helmut Reinhardt, husband of the murdered woman, visited her in hospital this morning a short time before she died.

"It's lucky she was able to talk," he said later. "We have many friends and now it appears we have some enemies."

Today's fatal stabbing brings the number of murders in the city this year to eight. Murder charges have been laid in six of the cases.

A meeting of indignant citizens was held to protest passage of the so-called "stamp act," which would impose "certain duties" on writings and deeds. Most of the citizens were business men who feared the obstruction of commercial transactions. A resolution viewing the proposed act with alarm was passed unanimously. Thomas Harris, M.P.P., was chairman of the meeting.

The large flag staff which is to be installed on Beacon Hill was towed to the beach at the foot of the hill by the gunboat Grappler. It is to be raised on May 24.

Pilots for the harbors of Esquimalt and Victoria asked for an increase in pilot dues, and provision of a suitable boat to take them out to vessels in the Race Rocks area.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A retired advertising man, John Thornton, has solved the mystery of the partially obliterated sign "Sold Every-where-5c" which was mentioned in this column May 9.

It was exposed by the demolition of a building at the corner of View and Douglas.

"I put up the sign myself around 1910," Mr. Thornton said. "It was an advertisement for Coca-Cola. Later I pasted another sign over it, but this has worn through and the original is back on display."

Former mayor Percy Scurrah and his wife showed perfect timing in their show-business debut at the Victor Borge show this week.

The comedian opened his show with some rollicking jokes at latecomers—particularly titillating the audience with witty descriptions of how some latecomers stumble over their feet, only to find out they're in the wrong row!

He was just finishing the joke when in walked the ex-mayor and his wife—his familiar snowy hair unmistakable in the spotlight glare as they tried to find their seats in the third row.

And—as Mr. Borge archly watched each movement to the delight of the audience—they found they were in the wrong row! The comedian then made a show of directing them to their proper seats.

It couldn't have been better timed if it had been rehearsed.

Things were rolling along smoothly on CBC-TV's Front Page Challenge show Tuesday night when "Mr. Victoria," George Warren, appeared as a guest until the announcer completed his introduction.

You can imagine the stricken look on George's face when he heard the gib words: Mr. Warren is now retired and lives in Vancouver.

MC Fred Davis jumped in quickly to point out that George would never desert his beloved Victoria and panelist Pierre Berton, a local boy, declared that as far as he was concerned, George had invented Victoria.

Pierre also guessed the headline story with which Mr. Warren was connected—the San Francisco earthquake of 1904.

Mr. Warren was working for Western Union in Frisco at the time and gave a vivid description of the disaster.

Readers of the current issue of Maclean's who spotted the St. Tropez Sea as a sister ship to our own CCGS Estevan can be forgiven for the error—the two ships do have a family resemblance. But they're not related.

The Tropic Sea was launched at St. Heliers, in Port Glasgow, G.B., and rebuilt to department of transport requirement at Saint John, N.B., in 1930.

She's 190 feet long, 507 tons.

Estevan, built at Collingwood, Ont., in 1912, is 212 feet, 607 tons.

One lone four-pound spring salmon soon will be winging its way to Amsterdam, cleaned and frozen.

Bill Hilborn of a local fishpacking house was amazed when a Dutchman out here on vacation asked him to ship home a fish he had caught.

"It will be fresh," said Bill, "but it will be a pretty expensive fish by the time it gets there."

Someone pinched a "Vote for Geoff Mitchell" sign but the Esquimalt-Saanich-NDP candidate is in three minds about it.

The four-by-eight-foot sign of half-inch plywood was on private property at 1332 Island Highway when it was stolen.

"If those responsible," said Mr. Mitchell, "were objecting on the grounds that it was aesthetically distasteful then I commend them."

"If they are my political opponents I condone them. If they were part of the hoodlum element I condemn them."

The juke box in a lunch counter near the Times lists the recordings in groups. Under "Old Favorites" appears the title: "The Epic Ride of John H. Glenn." Anybody remember back to that bit of ancient history?

Liberals Favor Force for Peace

A Liberal government of Canada would organize the non-nuclear countries into a dynamic force to speak for peace with authority, Esquimalt-Saanich candidate David Groos said on Tuesday.

He told 20 people who attended a meeting at McMorran's, Cordova Bay, that "all Canada is waiting to see what constructive action Mr. Diefenbaker is going to take now that he at last has a nuclear policy that makes some sense."

The Liberals, "working under the leadership of Mr. Pearson, would set to work right away organizing the non-nuclear countries into an active dynamic group to speak for peace with one voice and with some authority."

"A loud voice is needed in the councils of the world today. The voices are there but they need to be organized and no one is taking the lead. Let us do it. Canada has a good international reputation, let's put it to work," the candidate said.

He said Liberals in his riding had already scored an important victory in that the prime minister has adopted a non-nuclear policy while there is a prospect for peace.

This was the platform in the Liberal campaign during last year's byelection, he pointed out. Not until late in the race did the Social Credit and NDP candidates adopt similar stands.

Mr. Groos said, adding that the government candidate "never did support the position that Canada should renounce nuclear arms."

MARTIN

Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks, said Mr. Martin, cause "grave doubts about his qualification to serve as prime minister."

The speaker said he has seen evidence in Canada-wide campaigning of a "disquietude."

"All is not well in Canada. It is apparent wherever one goes."

He noticed it in Vancouver, where he spoke at one of the biggest meetings the Liberals ever assembled there; in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Maritimes and in his native Ontario, he said.

Important and critical situations at home and abroad are going unattended by the government. There are not the qualities of foresight and wisdom that are needed.

"Instead of performance we are getting promises," Mr. Martin said.

"If we do not produce, it will be at our peril."

ECONOMY SLOWS DOWN

The former minister said he came to Victoria "to help your candidates and get rid of the most incompetent government in Canadian history."

He compared the prime minister with predecessors Borden, Bennett, MacKenzie King and St. Laurent.

"Since he came to power the Canadian economy has slowed down" at a cost of $14,000,000,000, the speaker said.

He said there should be at least 300,000 more Canadians at work if the economy was to be maintained at the level it stood when the Conservative government took over.

With the Liberals, Canada stood third in the trading nations of the world, was highly respected at NATO, the UN and international bodies, Mr. Martin said.

There is no greater reflection of disquietude than the way in which the government administers the finance department, he said.

There was a $350,000,000 surplus when the Liberals left office and today there is a deficit of more than one billion dollars—a deficit in each of the finance minister's six budgets, the speaker said.

19 Moslems Killed

ALGIERS (Reuters)—Secret Army terrorists snuffed out dozens of lives today in Algiers and Oran.

By early afternoon at least 21 persons had died in attacks here, 19 of them Moslems. Four of the victims were women. In one hour European Secret Army gunmen struck 14 times.

Secret Army raiders broke into a police station in the Algiers suburbs of Hussein Dey, opening fire on prisoners. The number of casualties was not immediately known.

Mr. Pearson said that if the report was accurate he regretted Mr. Diefenbaker "even in the heat of the election campaign would so demean himself" as to make that charge.

Mr. Pearson said he had fought communism all his adult life and twice had been vetoed by the Communists when he was nominated for the post of secretary-general of the UN.

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated today his government intends to move in the UN a resolution on the subject of Russian colonialism, "one of transcendent importance to the free world."

Asked why he thought Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin had not taken action, the prime minister said the Liberal leaders failed to realize the problems.

BRITON WARNS GENEVA PARLEY

Russ Disarmament Plan Could Be 'Death Trap'

GENEVA (AP)—British delegate Joseph Godber warned today disarmament could become a death trap if it upsets the world military balance at any stage.

Godber told the 17-nation disarmament conference that Russian proposals for complete elimination of all nuclear delivery vehicles could impair this balance and yet not eliminate the threat of nuclear war.

He said a nuclear warhead capable of destroying a city is only five feet long and two feet in diameter and could easily be transported by commercial planes or other means.

The United States disarmament treaty draft calls for 33-per-cent reduction of the delivery vehicles with both the U.S. and Russia retaining nuclear weapons until at least the end of the second stage of disarmament.

E. M. L. Burns of Canada also said drastic measures in the elimination of delivery vehicles and nuclear weapons would lead to a situation "which might in fact be more dangerous to world peace."

The Canadian delegate said "we should plan to proceed by careful graduated stages from our present world position of non-confidence in which security is dependent on the balance of power to the position of confidence which we all hope to achieve."

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Zorin replied that Western disarmament plans would perpetuate the present unstable situation of the world.

Earlier, Arthur Dean, chief U.S. delegate here, said he is encouraged by Russia's willingness to continue talks without a recess.

Bulky BCE Documents Ruled as Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chief Justice Sherwood Lett Tuesday overruled government objections and allowed admission of His decision in favor of the plaintiff, B.C. Power Corporation, gave BCPC counsel Douglas McK. Brown the go ahead to call evidence showing the value of the BCE when it was taken over by the government last August.

The power corporation, former parent of the electric utility, is seeking a court order declaring the government takeover invalid.

Alternatively, it wants more compensation for the expropriation.

Mr. Brown said Tuesday he intends first to introduce about 500 pounds of BCE documents as evidence in the case.

These documents will be used to show the true value of the electric utility to the power corporation and BCE's earning potential, he said.

Brown said evidence obtained through entry of the company records will pertain to both the validity and compensation claims in the power corporation's suit.

The soldier today pleaded guilty to attempting to rob an Esquimalt woman while armed with an army bayonet Monday night and was remanded a week for probation report and sentence.

Court was told James Lawrence Young, Work Point Barracks, entered the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Laidler, 734 Sea Terrace, at 10 p.m. Monday and demanded money.

Esquimalt police chief James Smart said Young was armed with an army bayonet and his face was masked by a white handkerchief.

The soldier left after Mrs. Laidler and a neighbor who was with her both told him they had no money. He asked them for 20 minutes' grace before they called the police.

Mr. Pearson said that if the report was accurate he regretted Mr. Diefenbaker "even in the heat of the election campaign would so demean himself" as to make that charge.

Mr. Pearson said he had fought communism all his adult life and twice had been vetoed by the Communists when he was nominated for the post of secretary-general of the UN.

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated today his government intends to move in the UN a resolution on the subject of Russian colonialism, "one of transcendent importance to the free world."

Asked why he thought Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin had not taken action, the prime minister said the Liberal leaders failed to realize the problems.

LAY CONFERENCE

Christians, Communists Divide World

There are only two forces to be reckoned with in the world today, the dedicated Christian and the dedicated Communist, the B.C. Conference Lay Association was told Tuesday night.

"Communism is not a pagan philosophy," said Rev. James Mutchmor, "but a Christian heresy."

"The Communists, who deny the principle of freedom, are doing everything they can to commend the principle of interdependence, and not without success."

"It is time the Christian church went into high gear to support this principle."

First United Church was filled to capacity with conference delegates and interested laymen who wanted to hear Rev. Mutchmor's address to the 38th annual meeting of the B.C. Conference Lay Association.

BOARD SECRETARY
Rev. Mutchmor is secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada.

Today's society was described by Rev. Mutchmor as an "equity society."

"We don't own anything any more — we're just paying for it," he said.

Equity society has a paper economy. Its medium of exchange is the cheque, draft and credit card. Its benefits are called fringe benefits. Its mighty army of office personnel plays a paper-chasing game.

ANY DIFFERENCE?
"How different is much of this paper-chasing, which accounts for scores and hundreds of new bank buildings, for example, from digging post holes only to fill them up again?"

We cannot evade the responsibilities of living in a thermodynamic society, said Rev. Mutchmor.

"There is no easy answer to peace," he said, noting dissension within the church on the question of nuclear arms for Canada.

"We must live with the thermodynamic society," said Rev. Mutchmor, "we cannot contract out of it."

"The spectre of fear continues over us."

Tom Irwin, Controversial Speaker, Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Irwin, plain-spoken Social Credit leader with a Glasgow accent who was speaker of the B.C. legislature from 1952 until 1956, died Tuesday night.

Mr. Irwin was named speaker of the first year Social Credit went into power in B.C. He was named to the post each year until 1957 when he resigned to successfully contest the Burnaby Richmond federal riding.

He lost the federal election the following year.

Mr. Irwin was a controversial figure both inside the party and in his role as speaker.

RAPPED 'WINDBAGS'
As speaker he was accused of unparliamentary conduct in commenting on the quality of the speeches from both sides of the house which he termed "unnecessary windbagging."

He criticized the Social Credit party in 1959 for "losing that old evangelical spirit that took us into power in 1952."

When he became speaker he banished the bust of the famous Liberal Sir Wilfrid Laurier from his office and said he wouldn't take it back even if the premier ordered it.

Later the premier took the bust into his own office.

He supported tax inducements for farmers to remain on the land, divorce reform, elimination of atheistic teaching in school history books and ruled against wine and beer in the legislative members dining room.

McPHILLIPS PLEDGES

No Railway Strike Under Tories

A Conservative government would not allow railroad employees to strike next month, federal candidate A. DeB. McPhillips told an audience of 20 at his first campaign meeting Tuesday.

Operating railwaymen have set June 4 as strike deadline in their dispute with Canadian National Railways.

"There won't be a strike. Our prime minister won't allow it to take place," the candidate said.

He promised government intervention as was done in 1960, when negotiations in a non-operating dispute were frozen by Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. McPhillips spoke at Sir James Douglas School.

DEFICITS JUSTIFIED

He said the Conservative government's deficit financing "to put Canadians to work" was justified to meet the economic state and had resulted in extensive aid to the provinces.

He said provincial subsidies in the last fiscal year were $1,542,697,000, compared with $689,352,000 in the last year of the Liberal administration.

In 1956-57 there were no hospital insurance grants and last year there were more than $283,000,000 in grants, he said.

SHIPBUILDING BOOSTED

Shipbuilding grants, too, had bolstered employment in this area, Mr. McPhillips said. There were a fisheries research ship, a coast guard cutter and 40 per cent subsidies to the provincial ferries to help employ 2,000 local shipbuilders.

And two of the proposed eight super-frigates planned at a cost of $35,000,000 each would be built here, the minister of defence has promised, had secured through the post-war reconstruction program.

Finally, the speaker said he master general a commemorative centennial.

To the Rescue

DR. HUGH KEENLEYSIDE, chairman of the B.C. Hydro, seems to think that in earning his not inconsiderable salary his duty is to rescue the province from the clutches of a government official who is not a member of the B.C. Hydro. Why a government official should feel impelled to enter the party politics of Canada, on a controversial public issue, during an election, we don't know. But if Dr. Keenleyside must make himself Mr. Bennett's apologist surely he should stick at least to the facts.

He says that the so-called McNaughton Plan for the development of the Columbia River power scheme has been rejected by virtually all federal and provincial engineers. This is the scheme adopted in the treaty with the United States. The former would divert the Kootenay into the Columbia and create a major storage reservoir in the Kootenay valley. The latter would flood the Arrow Lakes valley.

How can Dr. Keenleyside tell us that no one of importance favors the Kootenay diversion, that everybody except General McNaughton approves the British Columbia government's plan? As Mr. Fulton has stated over and over again, his government struggled to secure this engineering design and expected British Columbia to endorse it.

At the last moment however, and without warning, the provincial government changed its mind, according to Mr. Fulton, and insisted on the alternative plan which would flood the Arrow Lakes area. Only because it could not secure agreement with Mr. Bennett otherwise, the Canadian government reluctantly accepted Mr. Bennett's demands as a second-best choice.

When Dr. Keenleyside says that virtually no one favors the Kootenay diversion does he regard the government of Canada as an insignificant factor, a powerless bystander? Who, if not the national authority, is to protect the interests of the nation?

Dr. Keenleyside's passionate defence of Mr. Bennett provides the latest element of confusion in a Columbia controversy which now passes public understanding. Clearly something mighty queer is under way when Mr. Bennett announces that there is no disagreement between him and the federal government—this after their years of public quarrel.

Clean Up the Meat Counter

THE FUROR OVER THE SALE of abscessed liver here appears to have accomplished the main purpose of the Metropolitan Health Board—that is to enforce inspection of locally slaughtered meat before it reaches retail counters.

At the moment the buying public is protected by health officers making close checks of local retail stores. This is the immediate safeguard set up pending a more permanent arrangement.

Plans now call for the drafting of a suitable meat inspection by-law by the provincial department of agriculture for circulation throughout municipalities and districts from Victoria to Sidney. The by-law would prohibit retail sale of meat unless it was clearly marked "Canada Approved" or "B.C. Passed."

Once that by-law was approved by the municipal or district authorities, the Metropolitan Health Board would establish a temporary inspection depot through which locally butchered meat would pass. The provincial government would staff the depot, which could be in operation by June 1.

In the meantime two local abattoir operators have undertaken

Certainly the federal government is desperate for a deal with Mr. Bennett before the election of June 18, so that it may claim a solution of the Columbia problem. Such a deal, it is evident, must be an appeal to the electors of British Columbia, especially if they don't understand the consequences. Then the government would denounce Mr. Pearson as the only obstacle to a quick start on the power scheme.

The problem is not as simple as that. In the first place, the Diefenbaker government may not be in office a few weeks hence and therefore cannot guarantee to push the Columbia treaty through the next Parliament.

Secondly, what is the nature of the agreement now being negotiated between Ottawa and Victoria?

Mr. Bennett surely is not surrendering his plan to alienate all the Columbia downstream power to the United States? On the other hand, if the federal government accepts this alienation it must repudiate everything it has said in the past, including Mr. Fulton's famous Prince George speech and an unequivocal letter written by Mr. Fleming to Mr. Bennett.

The federal government has stated frequently that under no circumstances and for no reason will it allow the downstream power to be sold to American consumers for more than a brief period. All this power, it says, must be wheeled into British Columbia for the benefit of its consumers. Has that policy now been abandoned, or whittled down, to suit Mr. Bennett and buy off his serious opposition to the government in the election campaign?

The confusion produced by both governments is now total. Mr. Bennett may call tenders for the smallest of three Columbia dams, he and the federal government may announce some kind of agreement, but obviously these complex problems cannot be satisfactorily settled, or even given serious study, before a new Parliament is elected. Only that Parliament will be entitled to consider the Columbia treaty.

Meanwhile, for their election purposes, the two governments seem determined to bewilder the voters in the hope of damaging Mr. Pearson, who seeks only to get the best possible power bargain for Canada.

to build abattoirs that meet government specifications. They say the plants could be completed by October 1.

Provided they come up to government requirements, the minister of agriculture would then declare a meat inspection area under relevant legislation and furnish inspectors for the abattoirs.

These are promising developments, but there are too many unanswered questions deriving from the original sale of abscessed liver.

The public has been told that a local butcher sold the meat, but not who he was nor if there is to be any court action on the issue.

Certainly he should be identified. All butchers selling uninspected meat are suspect until he is. Once he has been identified, he must be given the chance to defend himself in the impartial atmosphere of a court.

If he knowingly sold liver which health authorities say could be a serious menace to health, he should face the consequences. If he were ignorant of the condition of the liver, or its possible effects on humans, he deserves a chance to say so.

Drawing the Line

A COMMUNIST TAKE-OVER IN Laos would thrust a Marxist wedge between Thailand and Southern Viet Nam—the latter already fighting desperately to defeat infiltrating Communist guerrillas. It would bring a Communist state directly onto the border of Thailand and further imperil pro-Western governments in Southeast Asia.

It is to bolster this salient non-Communist territory that the United States has landed Marines in Thailand. The Thai government welcomes the move, Britain supports the United States in its intentions. But the possible consequences cannot be ignored. Direct military support to Thailand and extensive action in Laos may result in outright intervention by Red China or possibly Russia.

Already Red Chinese support has made possible the mounting pressure of North Viet Nam on South Viet Nam. It has arranged food, equipment and leadership for South Viet Nam drawn into the Communist ranks.

Undoubtedly, too, Peking's support has made possible the current Red military action in Laos, in direct violation of the truce which had stilled the fighting for the past few months—a truce directly underwritten by Russia.

Is this another sample of Communism's contempt for agreements with the Western world? Will Thailand eventually be invaded directly or indirectly, just as South Viet Nam and Laos have been?

The United States accepted the partition of French Indo-China into Communist north and non-Communist south. It accepted the plan to maintain Laos as a neutral state, with both Communists and non-Communists participating in the government. It was felt that these concessions would help to preserve peace in Southeast Asia.

But the line must be drawn somewhere. It has been flexible in Viet Nam and in Laos. Now the United States feels it essential to make it firm in Thailand.

The American Pacific forces are being readied for use if needed. That is fair warning to the Communists. Will world peace hinge on Communism's impatience to achieve by force what it apparently cannot accomplish by persuasion?

FOOTLIGHTS AND FOOTWORK

Thespians All—The New Political Drama

AN OTTAWA news item notes that the politicians are beginning to indulge in a little "stage business" while delivering their messages from the television screen.

They don't just sit at a table and read their speeches. That's old hat and too tame. To keep the attention of the audience—and don't forget the poor fellow is probably competing with other channels which are exhibiting comedy teams, chorus girls, space flights and galloping cowboys—the politician at least has to move around a bit and jazz up the act with a few homely actions.

Thus we read that the NDP's David Lewis and Walter Pitman lounged comfortably in armchairs, going through the familiar movements of people who lounge comfortably in armchairs, while they discussed their party's policies. Social Credit's Mr. Thompson showed a little more thespian initiative as he glanced through a book, walked to a desk, sat on it, moved behind it, and so on—a gripping performance.

Mr. Diefenbaker disappointed a little. He reverted to the pose of the radio newscaster, sitting immovable with folded arms in a Gibraltar-like state.

Mr. Pearson pulled out all the stops, being photographed in an aircraft and other exciting places and ending up at an office desk.

Well, it takes little imagination to realize that this is only a start. Just as the famous Kennedy-Nixon TV debates brought that sort of thing to a new high—at one point it seemed as though it would devolve into a Battle of the Make-up Men—so the new "alive" technique for political speakers will inevitably develop into full-scale stage presentations.

As the candidates never have very much air time, and as it becomes evident that the TV audiences are more interested in the performer's actions than in his words, the programs will be adjusted to suit the viewers.

Thus Candidate A may appear on your screen some evening. The scene is laid in his home. The camera trains on the front door as a ring is heard. His wife goes to the door, welcomes Mr. A, helps him off with his coat and hat and accompanies him into the living room.

Mr. A listens as Mrs. A keeps up a run of family chatter on the events of the day. He moves quietly about the room, picking up a book here and glancing at it, straightening a picture there and not glancing at it, fluffing up a cushion, poking the open fire, toying with knick-knacks on the mantel and in general giving the room a good going-over.

By this time the unseen audience has had an excellent view of Candidate A in action. They have seen his dexterity in handling a cigarette lighter, and his easy familiarity with his books. They have seen his favorite chair by the fire and they know he keeps his spectacle case in his upper right-hand vest pocket.

They also know that Candidate A has been on the air for 13½ minutes and that he hasn't much longer. Consequently, when his wife halts her monologue and Mr. A clears his throat, they know there is nothing to fear. The most the candidate can do is say hello—and that's exactly what he does.

Now the effectiveness of this method is that although the viewing audience will not know what the candidate has to say about anything, they will know what they really want to know—what he's like. In just portraying a human being, the candidate will be tested to the limit of his ability. If he passes that, he's in.

As to planks, platforms and policies—the less said about them the better. After all, it's Mr. A. the people are voting for, the image of a person, not the sound of his words. The candidate will get farther ahead on TV by riffling through his books than by reading them aloud. And at the polls too.

Frigates

Financial Post

THE news that Ottawa is to order eight new frigates will probably cause rejoicing in the nation's shipyards and among the professional career men of the Navy. For the taxpayer, facing up to the roughly $30 million per ship, it is less than wildly exciting.

No doubt the sailors were able to put up to their political chiefs a convincing case that this was precisely what the navy needed. The project anyway got past the eagle financial eye of the Treasury Board.

But it is still fair comment to say this has the odor of history repeating. Canada's primary naval role is anti-submarine, and it is increasingly clear the primary enemy is the nuclear submarine. Yet the nuclear sub—still in the early days of its development—can outpace any known or contemplated conventional surface warship.

To regain the important speed advantage for surface forces there is under way an ambitious U.S.-Canadian research program into hydrofoils. The British are experimenting with hovercraft designs for the same reason.

It will be some years before this latest batch of warships joins the Canadian fleet. For $30 million each, it is to be hoped they won't be obsolete before the first bottle of champagne has cracked over the first bow.

As Our Readers See It

In Appreciation

May I take a moment to express my personal appreciation of the contribution to the welfare of our city made by Justin Harbord. I speak from experience, ten years on the Greater Victoria School Board, and twelve years on Victoria College Council, when I say that few persons realize just what these positions of public trust entail.

There are many persons who feel that all public services, including civic government, should be run by paid professionals. It is true that much of the day to day administration of the schools, the city and the welfare is done by persons trained and paid to do this work, but without the leadership of dedicated private citizens to head these vital community services, our system of self government would soon sink in the quicksands of bureaucracy.

My hat is off to Justin for the type of effort that money cannot buy and I trust that his successor when he is found, even now, realizes that the expressed praise will be well indeed, but that the job is well worth the doing and deep in its heart Victoria will mark him as an outstanding public servant.

W. HUMPHREY GOLBY,
1207 Douglas Street.

Against Rodeo

It is difficult to understand how any organization dedicated to kindly service can sponsor a rodeo. The entire concept of these shows is wrong since they depend for their "thrill" on the violent resistance of the animals. Therefore, to produce a "good show" that resistance must be induced by some means.

Patience is a key to horse breaking. It is said and went on to explain how to produce a well-broken "gentle" animal ready for efficient work on the range. But the author added, horses used for rodeos, "aren't gentle or they'd lose their job and their reputation." Not only are these horses "rough-broken" but no rodeo or stampede promoter will attempt to put on a show without use of bucking straps and compulsory spurring of shoulders and flanks.

That alone is enough to condemn these spectacles but there is also the matter of deep bruises, injuries and terror caused by ruthlessly rough handling in chutes and during roping and other contests—we even note that so-called "bullfighting" is included in the advertised program.

Victorians are on the whole kindly people. I cannot think this is the type of entertainment many of us want for our centennial year.

Church and Vacation

I was greatly interested in the following in a recent Times: "Satan Busiest" during summer. "Vacation Exodus Hurts Church."

I well remember some years back while spending our vacation at Winnipeg Beach, my wife, two daughters and myself. On Sunday morning we were up early, having to drive some distance for service.

On our return home from church service, one of our neighbours came out with the following remark: "Why all the glad rags?" My reply was that we had just returned from church. That remark got me thinking. When you go on your vacation from the city, are you supposed to leave God back in the city? Don't take him with you to the beach? You just can't have any fun when He's around?

German Students Smoke

We are American students in the Schiller-Gymnasium in Cologne, Germany and have read your article of April 30, 1962, about Arthur Dorman Geissler. We would like to draw a comparison between our views of Germany and those of Art. He has stated that it is not considered "big" to smoke or drink. This implies that it is not done, whereas 90 per cent of the kids smoke and nearly all drink. Hot-rodging is almost non-existent because the driving age here is higher than in the States and very few kids have enough money to buy a car.

Serious students here go to a "gymnasium", whereas only students who plan to quit school at the age of 15 or 16 take their chosen trade with their school education.

Great Events, But the Government Failed to Comprehend

From the Times Ottawa Bureau

WHEN the Diefenbaker government took office in 1957 on the promise (among many others) that it would encourage British imports, it was already planning to restrict them, as it proceeded to do after its re-election in 1958. But all these calculations ignored the paramount fact of the world economy, the fact entirely outside Canada's control.

As Mr. Diefenbaker prepared to dissolve Parliament early in 1958 his eyes, and Canada's, were fastened on the approaching election. Simultaneously a much larger event was under way in Europe. The Common Market had been born and was making the first tariff cuts between its six member nations.

This revolution in Europe's affairs, if it succeeded, obviously must shift the whole economic gravity of the free world and drastically affect Canada's future. The Canadian government, however, paid little attention to Europe's experiment. That was its first mistake. For Canadian trade policy, with its new measures of tariff protection, was constructed for a situation which already was collapsing.

During the next two years the European economic revolution did not seem to affect Canada much. So long as Canada retained its tariff preferences in the British market—where it was soon running a huge trade surplus by restricting British imports—what happened on the adjoining continent did not disturb the Diefenbaker government.

In the summer of 1960 this newspaper and others reported from London that Britain would soon seek admission to the Common Market. The news was greeted in Ottawa at first with derision and then with terror.

A government which had grievously damaged Britain by restricting British goods at once warned Britain not to damage Canada. Mr. Fleming flew to London and at a Commonwealth conference the violence of his protest against Britain's possible membership in the Common Market shocked the British public. That was only the beginning.

On Nov. 17, at Ste. Adele, Quebec, Mr. Fleming laid down in detail the thesis of obstruction and harassment which his government has followed ever since.

While it was not yet clear that "there is any basis for negotiation, let alone anything concrete to negotiate," nevertheless Mr. Fleming issued his first overt threat in case Britain really intended to enter the Common Market. If, he said, the Commonwealth preference system was to be seriously revised, then "the pressures for Canada to embark on a closer trade association with other countries, particularly the United States, would understandably be greatly increased."

The meaning of that statement was clear; also familiar in Canadian history. Unless Britain protected Canada's interests, regardless of its own, Canada would switch more of its business to the United States, though the government had promised precisely the opposite in the 1957 election.

The threat did not end there. Mr. Fleming went on to say that "the ability of the Canadian government to maintain existing preferences in the Canadian market in favor of the United Kingdom would inevitably be affected by changes in the access of Canadian goods to the United Kingdom."

This was equally clear — Canada would directly retaliate against any loss of its preferences in Britain.

The Canadian government felt confident by now that its warnings and threats had halted Britain on the brink of a disastrous European adventure. As late as the spring of 1961 it was privately assuring businessmen and newspaper correspondents that Britain would never join the Common Market. Mr. Diefenbaker told his confidential friends that in any case the Common Market was a temporary and doomed experiment which must soon fail to places.

Undoubtedly the government was quite sincere in its belief despite all evidence to the contrary. That was its second mistake.

Ottawa's period of twilight sleep was suddenly when the British government announced last summer that it would shortly open negotiations with the European Six. Every informed observer had long expected this announcement but it hit Ottawa with the force of a nuclear explosion. The government's third mistake soon followed.

Now the protests and threats were stepped up in frequency and volume to the climax of the Accra conference. There Canada finally warned Britain that it would lose the leadership of the Commonwealth if it ventured on the "slippery slope" of Europe.

This was a double mistake of policy and practical politics. For it infuriated the British and damaged the Canadian government at home.

Public resentment against its treatment of Britain reached such a pitch, with an election not far off, that the government executed a hasty retreat. It spent the winter months trying to explain, deny and undo the havoc of Accra.

Having failed in the strategy of threat and bluff, which only strengthened Britain's resolution, Canada adopted a strategy of regret and persuasion. For the time being sorrow replaced anger, in public at least.

By April 10 last, Mr. Fleming assured the Canadian people in his budget speech that official discussions with Britain were now proceeding "in an atmosphere of friendly understanding."

The quarrel seemed to be over, but it was not, as Prime Minister Macmillan soon found on his recent visit to Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker's subsequent speeches showed that his government was still trying to keep Britain out of the Common Market, at any cost to British interests, and still arguing that Britain could not join Europe and retain its leadership of the Commonwealth.

But in all this zig-zag march from the electoral hustings of 1957 through Ste. Adele, London and Accra, the government had failed to comprehend another event as great as the birth of the Common Market. That was its fourth and probably its largest mistake. (Third of a series)

To the Rescue

DR. HUGH KEENEYSIDE, chairman of the B.C. Hydro, seems to think that in earning his not inconsiderable salary his duty is to rush at all times to the rescue of his employer, Premier Bennett. Why a government official should feel impelled to enter the party politics of Canada, on a controversial public issue, during an election, we don't know. But if Dr. Keenleyside must make himself Mr. Bennett's apologist surely he should stick at least to the facts.

He says that the so-called McNaughton Plan for the development of the Columbia River power scheme has been rejected by virtually all federal and provincial engineers. This is not true. The plan adopted in the treaty with the United States. The former would divert the Kootenay into the Columbia and create a major storage reservoir in the Kootenay valley. The latter would flood the Arrow Lakes valley.

How can Dr. Keenleyside tell us that no one of importance favors the Kootenay diversion, that everybody except General McNaughton approves the British Columbia government's plan? As Mr. Fulton has stated over and over again, his government struggled to secure this engineering design and expected British Columbia to endorse it.

At the last moment however, and without warning, the provincial government changed its mind, according to Mr. Fulton, and insisted on the alternative plan which would flood the Arrow Lakes area. Only because it could not secure agreement with Mr. Bennett otherwise, the Canadian government reluctantly accepted Mr. Bennett's demands as a second-best choice.

When Dr. Keenleyside says that virtually no one favors the Kootenay diversion does he regard the government of Canada as an insignificant factor, a powerless bystander? Who, if not the national authority, is to protect the interests of the nation?

Dr. Keenleyside's passionate defence of Mr. Bennett provides the latest element of confusion in a Columbia controversy which now passes public understanding. Clearly something mighty queer is under way when Mr. Bennett announces that there is no disagreement between him and the federal government—this after their years of public quarrel.

Clean Up the Meat Counter

THE FUROR OVER THE SALE of abcessed liver here appears to have accomplished the main purpose of the Metropolitan Health Board—that is to enforce inspection of locally slaughtered meat before it reaches retail counters.

At the moment the buying public is protected by health officers making close checks of local retail stores. This is the immediate safeguard set up pending a more permanent arrangement.

Plans now call for the drafting of a suitable meat inspection by-law by the provincial department of agriculture for circulation throughout municipalities and districts from Victoria to Sidney. The by-law would prohibit retail sale of meat unless it was clearly marked "Canada Approved" or "B.C. Passed."

Once that by-law was approved by the municipal or district authorities, the Metropolitan Health Board would establish a temporary inspection depot through which locally butchered meat would pass. The provincial government would staff the depot, which could be in operation by June 1.

In the meantime two local abattoir operators have undertaken

Certainly the federal government is desperate for a deal with Mr. Bennett before the election of June 18, so that it may claim a solution of the Columbia problem. Such a deal, it evidently thinks, would appeal to the electors of British Columbia, especially if they don't understand the consequences. Then the government would denounce Mr. Pearson as the only obstacle to a quick start on the power scheme.

The problem is not as simple as that. In the first place, the Diefenbaker government may not be in office a few weeks hence and therefore cannot guarantee to push the Columbia treaty through the next Parliament.

Secondly, what is the nature of the agreement now being negotiated between Ottawa and Victoria?

Mr. Bennett surely is not surrendering his plan to alienate all the Columbia downstream power to the United States? On the other hand, if the federal government accepts this alienation it must repudiate everything it has said in the past, including Mr. Fulton's famous Prince George speech and an unequivocal letter written by Mr. Fleming to Mr. Bennett.

The federal government has stated frequently that under no circumstances and for no reason will it allow the downstream power to be sold to American consumers for more than a brief period. All this power, it says, must be wheeled into British Columbia for the benefit of its consumers. Has that policy now been abandoned, or whittled down, to suit Mr. Bennett and buy off his serious opposition to the government in the election campaign?

The confusion produced by both governments is now total. Mr. Bennett may call tenders for the smallest of three Columbia dams, he and the federal government may announce some kind of agreement but obviously these complex problems cannot be satisfactorily settled, or even given serious study, before a new Parliament is elected. Only that Parliament will be entitled to consider the Columbia treaty.

Meanwhile, for their election purposes, the two governments seem determined to bewilder the voters in the hope of damaging Mr. Pearson, who seeks only to get the best possible power bargain for Canada.

to build abattoirs that meet government specifications. They say the plants could be completed by October 1.

Provided they come up to government requirements, the minister of agriculture would then declare a meat inspection area under relevant legislation and furnish inspectors for the abattoirs.

These are promising developments, but there are too many unanswered questions deriving from the original sale of abcessed liver.

The public has been told that a local butcher sold the meat, but not who he was nor if there is to be any court action on the issue.

Certainly he should be identified. All butchers selling uninspected meat are suspect until he is. Once he has been identified, he must be given the chance to defend himself in the impartial atmosphere of a court.

If he knowingly sold liver which health authorities say could be a serious menace to health, he should face the consequences. If he were ignorant of the condition of the liver, or its possible effects on humans, he deserves a chance to say so.

Drawing the Line

A COMMUNIST TAKE-OVER IN Laos would thrust a Marxist wedge between Thailand and Southern Viet Nam—the latter already fighting desperately to defeat infiltrating Communist guerrillas. It would bring a Communist state directly onto the border of Thailand and further imperil pro-Western governments in Southeast Asia.

It is to bolster this salient non-Communist territory that the United States has landed Marines in Thailand. The Thai government welcomes the move, Britain supports the United States in its intentions. But the possible consequences cannot be ignored. Direct military support to Thailand and defensive action in Laos may result in outright intervention by Red China or possibly Russia.

Already Red Chinese support has made possible the mounting pressure of North Viet Nam's force on South Viet Nam. It has arranged food, equipment and leadership for South Viet Namese drawn into the Communist ranks.

Undoubtedly, too, Peking's support has made possible the current Red military action in Laos, in direct violation of the truce which had stilled the fighting for the past few months—a truce directly underwritten by Russia.

Is this another sample of Communism's contempt for agreements with the Western world? Will Thailand eventually be invaded directly or indirectly, just as South Viet Nam and Laos have been?

The United States accepted the partition of French Indo-China into Communist north and non-Communist south. It accepted the plan to maintain Laos as a neutral state, with both Communists and non-Communists participating in the government. It was felt that these concessions would help to preserve peace in Southeast Asia.

But the line must be drawn somewhere. It has been flexible in Viet Nam and in Laos. Now the United States feels it essential to make it firm in Thailand.

The American Pacific forces are being readied for use if needed. That is fair warning to the Communists. Will world peace hinge on Communism's impatience to achieve by force what it apparently cannot accomplish by persuasion?

FOOTLIGHTS AND FOOTWORK

Thespians All—The New Political Drama

AN OTTAWA news item notes that the politicians are beginning to indulge in a little "stage business" while delivering their messages from the television screen.

They don't just sit at a table and read their speeches. That's old hat and too tame. To keep the attention of the audience—and don't forget the poor fellow is probably competing with other channels which are exhibiting comedy teams, chorus girls, space flights and galloping cowboys—the politician at least has to move around a bit and jazz up the act with a few homey actions.

Thus we read that the NDP's David Lewis and Walter Pitman lounged comfortably in armchairs, going through the familiar movements of people who lounge comfortably in armchairs, while they discussed their party's policies.

Social Credit's Mr. Thompson showed a little more thespian initiative as he glided through a book, walked to a desk, sat on it, moved behind it, and so on—a gripping performance.

Mr. Diefenbaker disappointed a little. He reverted to the pose of the radio newscaster, sitting immovable with folded arms in a Gibraltar-like state.

Mr. Pearson pulled out all the stops, being photographed in an aircraft and other exciting places and ending up at an office desk.

Well, it takes little imagination to realize that this is only a start. Just as the famous Kennedy-Nixon TV debates brought that sort of thing to a new high—at one point it seemed as though it would devolve into a Battle of the Make-up Men—so the new "alive" technique for political speakers will inevitably develop into full-scale stage presentations.

As the candidates never have very much air time, and as it becomes evident that the TV audiences are more interested in the performer's actions than in his words, the programs will be adjusted to suit the viewers.

Thus Candidate A may appear on your screen some evening. The scene is laid in his home. The camera trains on the front door as a ring is heard. His wife goes to the door, welcomes Mr. A, helps him off with his coat and hat and accompanies him into the living room.

Mr. A listens as Mrs. A keeps up a run of family chatter on the events of the day. He moves quietly about the room, picking up a book here and glancing at it, straightening a picture there and not glancing at it, fluffing up a cushion, poking the open fire, toying with knick-knacks on the mantel and in general giving the room a good going-over.

By this time the unseen audience has had an excellent view of Candidate A in action. They have seen his dexterity in handling a cigarette lighter, and his easy familiarity with his books. They have seen his favorite chair by the fire and they know he keeps his spectacle case in his upper right-hand vest pocket.

They also know that Candidate A has been on the air for 13½ minutes and that he hasn't much longer. Consequently, when his wife halts her monologue and Mr. A clears his throat, they know there is nothing to fear. The most the candidate can do is say hello—and that's exactly what he does.

Now the effectiveness of this method is that although the viewing audience will not know what the candidate has to say about anything, they will know what they really want to know—what he's like. In just portraying a human being, the candidate will be tested to the limit of his ability. If he passes that, he's in.

As to planks, platforms and policies—the less said about them the better. After all, it's Mr. A, the people are voting for the image of a person, not the sound of his words. The candidate will get farther ahead on TV by riffling through his books than by reading them aloud. And at the polls too.

Frigates

Financial Post

THE news that Ottawa is to order eight new frigates will probably cause rejoicing in the nation's shipyards and among the professional career men of the Navy. For the taxpayer, facing up to the roughly $30 million per ship, it is less than wildly exciting.

No doubt the sailors were able to put up to their political chiefs a convincing case that this was precisely what the navy needed. The project anyway got past the eagle financial eye of the Treasury Board.

But it is still fair comment to say this has the odor of history repeating. Canada's primary naval role is anti-submarine, and it is increasingly clear the primary enemy is the nuclear submarine. Yet the nuclear sub—still in the early days of its development—can outpace any known or contemplated conventional surface warship.

To regain the important speed advantage for surface forces there is under way an ambitious U.S.-Canadian research program into hydrofoils. The British are experimenting with hovercraft designs for the same reason.

It will be some years before this latest batch of warships joins the Canadian fleet. For $30 million each, it is to be hoped they won't be obsolete before the first bottle of champagne has cracked over the first bow.

Great Events, But the Government Failed to Comprehend

From the Times Ottawa Bureau

WHEN the Diefenbaker government took office in 1957 on the promise (among many others) that it would encourage British imports, it was already planning to restrict them, as it proceeded to do after its re-election in 1958. As Our Readers See It

In Appreciation

May I take a moment to express my personal appreciation of the contribution to the welfare of our city made by Justin Harbord. I speak from experience, ten years on the Greater Victoria School Board, and twelve years on Victoria College Council, when I say that few persons realize just what these positions of public trust entail.

There are many persons who feel that all public services, including civic government, should be run by paid professionals. It is true that much of the day-to-day administration of the schools, the city and the welfare is done by persons trained and paid to do this work, but without the leadership of dedicated private citizens to head these vital community services, our system of self government would soon sink in the quicksands of bureaucracy.

My hat is off to Justin for the type of effort that money cannot buy and I trust that his successor when he is found, even now, realizes that the expressed praise will be aptly indeed, but that the job is well worth the doing and deep in its heart Victoria will mark him as an outstanding public servant.

Against Rodeo

It is difficult to understand how any organization dedicated to kindly service can sponsor a rodeo. The entire concept of these shows is wrong since they depend for their "thrill" on the violent resistance of the animals. Therefore, to produce a "good show" that resistance must be induced by some means.

By this time the unseen audience has had an excellent view of Candidate A in action. They have seen his dexterity in handling a cigarette lighter, and his easy familiarity with his books. BUSINESS VIEWS

Ontario Hydro Bonds Go Fast

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Premier Bennett's $25 million B.C. Hydro issue—offering a yield of 5.29 per cent—sat around for days with few takers.

Tuesday, a $50 million Ontario Hydro issue—of which $40 million was in 20-year bonds yielding 5.10 per cent—was snapped up within 20 minutes.

Few dealers out this way even got a sniff at the Ont. Hydro issue which was an open offering of $50 million in 5 per cent bonds of June 15, 1982, callable in 1979 at $98.75 to yield 5.10 and 4½ per cent of June 15, 1970, non-callable at $98.75 to yield 4.69. The long side of the issue was favored and took about $40 million of the offering.

Meanwhile, no matter what Mr. Bennett's "over-subscribed" bonds are still being offered at Vancouver under the issue notice.

Also, no matter what Mr. Bennett claims about B.C. having the best credit rating in North America, the financial community doesn't share this view. Quite definitely, it has been shown, Ontario's rating is still considerably higher.

There has been some dissatisfaction with redemption notices placed by B.C. Hydro in the newspapers concerning the $40 million in 6 per cent B.C. Electric convertible debentures.

Royal Trust Co., trustee for the holders of the debentures,

Oil Holdings Taken Over By Ceylon

LONDON (AP)—Caltex Oil Company said Monday night that more than $1,000,000 worth of its installations in Ceylon have been taken over by the government in a move designed to pave the way for sale of Russian oil.

The company said seized properties included 30 service stations, two large fuel oil storage tanks and pumping equipment, one bulk depot, and other facilities, resulting in the closing of Caltex marine bunkering installations at Colombo.

Claiming that the takeover was effected to put the new, government-owned Ceylon petroleum corporation in business, the company said: "The new company will be supplied with refined products principally from the Soviet Union. Thus, the Russians will be shipping a complete range of petroleum products into Ceylon for storage and handling through American-owned facilities for which they have paid nothing."

apparently believes that it should be made a matter of record that the holders have 30 days not only to submit the debentures for redemption but also the option of converting to B.C. Power Corp. common shares.

The B.C. Hydro notice ignored the matter of conversion and stated only that the debentures would be redeemed June 18.

Royal Trust will make the matter quite clear in its own newspaper notices this week.

Despite the fact that choosing conversion rather than redemption would result in financial loss for holders of the debentures, it is believed likely there will be at least a few people demanding B.C. Power shares as a matter of principle.

Status of the conversion right is already being tested in a court case brought by a Vancouver lawyer. If the right is found to still exist, it could delay liquidation of B.C. Power Corp. until November, 1963.

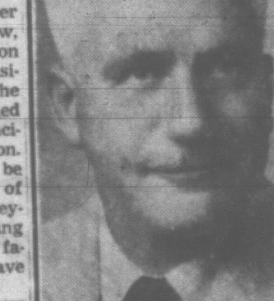

According to Business Week magazine, the flattening-out process has been gradual, and masked in part, but President Kennedy's steel price rollback has made things abruptly and dramatically clear. Prices have stopped rising and the U.S. government is working actively to keep any major rises from starting.

"Washington — pressed by the need to contain the outflow of gold — is acting on the assumption that it can and will prevent any resumption of the upward trend that persisted through the post war period until 1958," the magazine states.

Backing up the magazine's report on U.S. price stability is the latest report of the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

This group finds that upward pressure on prices of commodities has been slowed and that inventory build-ups are decreasing.

In general, the report states that business in the U.S. is good and should continue at a satisfactory level for the balance of the year.

College Voting in Fall

By IAIN HUNTER
 Victoria College students next September will vote on joining the 100,000-member National Federation of Canadian University Students, a student council spokesman said today.

The local college is at present one of three major Canadian campuses not belonging to the federation, comprised of 40 universities across Canada.

Application for membership was approved in principle by last year's student council, but endorsement by the present council, elected in March, followed a Western Regional Conference of the Federation held in Banff, May 1 to 5. Victoria College sent a delegation of three as observers.

DOUBTED WORTH
 Head of this delegation, Ellery Littleton, president of the Men's Undergraduate Society, said he was not too enthusiastic over college membership before the conference.
 "We didn't know at first whether it was worth the $1,000 a year to join," he said, "but we were very impressed by the advantages of membership in the end."

Through pressure on the government by a full-time elected president and secretariat in Ottawa, the federation has succeeded in having university fees made exempt from income tax, in removing the excise tax on university text books, and in gaining half rates for travel by Nordair for students in Ontario and Quebec. "Similar efforts for student rate reductions with the CPA, CFP and CNE now are being made."

PROMOTES UNITY
 "The federation is particularly valuable in promoting unity in such a large country as Canada," Mr. Littleton said.

Head of NFCUS is Walter McLean, of Victoria, whose presidential term ends in September. He has offered personally to sponsor Victoria College membership at the national conference to be held in Sherbrooke, P.Q., this fall.

He said, while in Victoria over the weekend when he met with the college student council, that Victoria's degree-granting status qualified his old alma-mater for membership in the federation. "Victoria College already is a major Canadian university," he said. "It is larger than all but one of the 20 Maritime campuses which are NFCUS members."

WIDE RANGE
 Other projects which the college would tackle upon joining the federation range from education of the Canadian Indian to the role of student newspapers.

At present the federation, alarmed at the high rate of suicides among university students in Canada, is investigating the possibility of setting up a psychiatric counselling service in association with student federations of other countries.

Mr. McLean said that nearly a dozen suicides attributed to examination pressures had occurred at UBC alone.

Mr. Littleton said that the local student council hopes to have "everything wrapped up" by the end of August in preparation for a student referendum in late September.

Hide Tools From Patient, Dentists Told
 TORONTO (CP)—State dentistry is a foregone conclusion unless dentists change their public image, delegates to the 95th annual convention of the Ontario Dental Association were told Tuesday.

Dr. Warren J. Riley, a member of the dental faculty of the University of Manitoba, said patients regard dentists as broken-down mechanics in the business of filling gold and silver teeth fillings.

He said dentists have been unable to achieve the status or popularity of doctors largely because a visit to a dentist's office is inclined to inspire fear rather than confidence, he said.

A doctor's patient never sees the surgical tools used on him because he is under an anaesthetic, but the first thing a person in a dentist's office sees is all the mechanical instruments of the dental operating room.

Dr. Riley suggested that one way to overcome the patient's anxiety is to use mobile equipment and keep it well behind the chair.

Committee Studies Little League Ban

Intermunicipal committee Tuesday voted to question a Greater Victoria school board policy banning Little League baseball practices from school grounds.

Committee decided to ask for an explanation of the reasons behind the policy and request that all efforts be made to permit the boys to practice on school grounds.

Action followed a Vancouver Island Little League Association complaint that 2,000 boys between eight and 12 years are hampered by the ruling.

The association pointed out the Little Leaguers are closely supervised by adults and are fully insured for injuries and liability.

It also said the school board permits older boys to practice softball on school grounds.

NDP Pledged To Assist Jobless

By FRANK RUTER,
Times Political Reporter

PORT ALBERNI—Tommy Douglas Tuesday night pledged his New Democratic Party would banish unemployment from the face of Canada and put her people to work immediately upon election.

A giant housing program would be a major job project. Mr. Douglas coupled his statements on unemployment of the federal election campaign with a fierce attack on "the old-line parties"—especially the Liberals.

A crowd of 600 (including a busload from Victoria) applauded enthusiastically in the 1076-seat auditorium of Port Alberni High School.

Mr. Douglas was most scathing in denouncing the Liberals, possibly because the NDP felt sure of winning the Comox-Alberni seat before Courtenay.

'Old Ways Found Wanting'

"Don't go back to the old ways—they've been tried and found wanting," was his plea.

His plan for meeting the challenge of automation and providing jobs for a million young people in the next three years.

"We pledge ourselves if elected June 18 we will banish unemployment from the face of this country," said Mr. Douglas.

"This is not an idle boast. (Countries in Europe, Sweden and Israel, had done it by planning.)

"There is no need for any able bodied person in Canada

Liberals Blamed With Tories

Mr. Douglas said the Liberals were just as much to blame for unemployment problems as the Tories.

"Do they think we've forgotten the unemployment we had when the Liberals were in?"

Mr. Douglas also attacked the Liberals for failing to bring in a national health plan after they adopted it as a major policy in 1919.

"Now in 1962 they've got the gall to come and promise you

Servants of Big Business

If they got into office again they'd be even more servants of big business—even more the servants of 'Jesse' James St. and Bay St. (the financial centres of Montreal and Toronto.)

The Conservatives, who have "lost their vision" were apparently pursuing a disastrous protectionist policy.

Not only had they failed to keep the promise to divert 15 per cent of trade to Britain, acted "like spoiled children" about the Common Market, but "were all under the bed" when Britain offered free trade with Canada.

Mr. Douglas' social security program includes a $75 pension without a means test; a contributory retirement plan; a national health plan with the federal government paying 60 per cent of the cost.

Anti-Nuclear Stand Wins Island Crowd

PORT ALBERNI—Biggest ovation for Tommy Douglas here Tuesday came when he dealt with nuclear weapons, which he said some people "might not be interested in."

"To my mind this is the most important problem facing the people of Canada and the world," he said.

"I don't doubt if either the Liberals or Conservatives are elected with a majority June 18 we'll have nuclear weapons in Canada."

He said the New Democratic Party had a definite policy and it was: "We will not allow nuclear weapons on Canadian soil nor will we allow nuclear weapons for Canadian forces."

'BIG PRIVATE PLANES DON'T WIN ELECTIONS'

PORT ALBERNI—If the New Democratic Party is short of funds it doesn't worry Tommy Douglas.

He told a meeting here Tuesday: "We don't think an election can be won by money. We think it can be won by people."

He said he saw in newspapers that the NDP was running "a shoestring" campaign. That was better than any other strings.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Pearson were able to hire "big private planes for 30 to 40 people."

But he would rather do it his way.

'Treaty Changed To Please Socreds'

PORT ALBERNI—CP—New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday night no matter what government is elected in Canada it ought to renegotiate the Columbia River Treaty.

He said the treaty had been changed to please Premier Bennett's Social Credit government.

"I, for one don't like it," he said. "It should be renegotiated on a planned basis."

Arriving at Vancouver's In-

Douglas Held Up by Mercy Flight

PORT ALBERNI—New Democratic leader Tommy Douglas gave way to an errand of mercy Tuesday.

He was 90 minutes late here because the float plane he had chartered to bring him from Vancouver was rushed off on an emergency call.

When Mr. Douglas flew into Vancouver he was to board the B.C. Airlines Beaver immediately—around 6 p.m.

But he was told it had gone to Pemberton, 80 miles away, to pick up a workman who had both legs crushed in an accident.

He whiled away the time in the seats were replaced, and Vancouver chatting with the 40 people there to greet him, went to an airport lounge, shaved, and changed his suit.

When the Beaver returned, the waiting crowd sang songs and heard a speech by high school at 8.30—half an hour after his NDP election rally was to have started.

The waiting crowd sang songs and heard a speech by Alberni MLA John Squire.

Schools to Invest In B.C. Hydro Bonds

PENTICTON (CP)—Penticton School District will invest $11,000 in surplus funds in B.C. Hydro and Power Authority bonds.

C. E. Clay, school superintendent, said interest from the bonds would be used to support a high school education for a student who could not otherwise afford it.

TEE TOPICS

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Classic writings are judged to be so through style and matter. No book has ever become a best-seller-only because it was printed neatly and on good paper.

In golf, style is not-considered quite as important. Strokes count. Records have yet to show a golfer winning a tournament on the strength of a smooth swing, or because he wore Dior-designed slacks with an imported Italian T-shirt.

Yet Gene Sarazen doesn't believe Arnold Palmer's name should be mentioned in the same breath that whispers Bob Jones or Ben Hogan.

Last month, Sarazen appraised Palmer as "a great competitor" and a "young man with more determination than any player I have ever known."

"He has only one thing in mind-win, win, win. But so far, he has proved only one thing to me. He is a long hitter with a hot putter, and a tremendous scrambler."

"From tee to green, Palmer has shown he doesn't deserve to be mentioned in the same breath with Jones and Hogan."

Sarazen, once one of the best, has his reasons for refusing to rate Palmer a great. Some even may be good reasons.

Here's How Perfect Golfer Looks

Sarazen's appraisal and Palmer's successes bring to mind the time, several years ago, when a noted golf authority presented a composite picture of the world's greatest golfer. He looked like this:

Off the tee for distance-Sam Snead; off the tee for accuracy-Jim Turisea; best brassy shots-Gary Middlecoff; short irons-Julius Boros; long irons-Jim Demaret; putting under pressure-Jackie Burke and Lloyd Mangrum.

That was the perfect golfer. So how come that I'll tell you, Ben Hogan, was winning all the tournaments at that time?

It is true that I like Dow Finsterwald's swing better than Palmer's. And Gene Littler is lovely to watch. Now ask me, if I had a choice, whose bank account would I like to have?

Dunbarville, Herman!

It is not for me to say that Sarazen might have had something to do with Palmer's most recent successes. However, while Gene was denying Palmer a touch of greatness, Arnold's name was moving around Las Vegas and picking up 11,000 silver dollars.

On Monday, the bull-shouldered Masters champion made it three straight tournament victories by defeating Johnny Pott in a playoff for $7,000 at the Colonial in Fort Worth.

Well, sir . . .

Mark Twain, never a great golfer but a delight with words, once pointed out that "man is the only animal that blushes . . . or needs to."

Mr. Sarazen, of that species, needs to.

SHORT CHIPS: Interest in the Centennial Foursomes tournament appears to be dwindling, and that's a crying shame.

It's a good event, and should be one of the most popular one-day tournaments of the season.

Entry fee ($7 per team), from what I gather, appears to be scaring off many golfers.

Also disappointing was the manner in which the event was reported.

Results made a fast disappearing act. Normally, the co-operation from the various clubs is first-rate but there was a lot to be desired Sunday or Monday morning.

It's Frank Scroggs out in front when Uplands members resume Uplands Cup competition this weekend.

At the same time, Colwood carries on with its handicap championship.

Vancouver's Peter Bentley and former Canadian Amateur champion Johnny Johnston made up the first all-mainland entry competing for the Foursomes' rose bowls last weekend.

Gorge Vale's Shirley Naysmith captured the ladies' North Island championship at the weekend.

Inter-club matches start next Wednesday and the B.C. parent-child tournament comes Gorge Vale's way May 27.

Bert Tiechurst's 3-and-2 victory over Johnny Russell in the Vancouver match play championship marks him up for consideration when B.C. selectors get around to picking a Willingdon Cup team.

GORD STRONGMAN
... brilliant effort

Maybe Not Perfection, But Gordon Came Close

Gordon Strongman wasn't quite perfect as he performed his pitching chore Tuesday night in the Cosmopolitan Babe Ruth League at Beacon Hill.

He allowed three batters to reach first base.

Otherwise, the sturdy 15-year-old righthander was as sharp and slick as a new razor blade. Strongman came up with a dream performance, hurling a no-hit, no-run game as Dominion Hotel shaved Sidney 3-0. On the way, Strongman struck out 21 batters, whiffing the side in each of the seven innings.

Strongman walked the first two batters he faced; then settled down to strike out the next 14. He hit the next swinger before winding up his chores with another seven strikeouts.

If Sidney had given 13-year-old southpaw Doug Hannan errorless support, the game might have gone on and on. Hannan yielded only one hit, a single by Derek Rolis, but his mates committed four errors and all Dominion Hotel runs were unearned.

Strongman, who starred on the mound last season for the Carnarvon Pony League all-stars who went to the regional playoffs, was making his second start of the season. Last week he struck out 20 and batted in the winning run in a 3-2, eight-inning triumph.

Brent Walker was also a pitching star Tuesday night, tossing a one-hitter to ease Jokers to a 17-1 romp over Oak Bay Police.

In the Connie Mack League, Bob Mabey hurled a two-hit triumph as Young Liberals whipped Victoria Optimists 5-1.

BUCKS REWARD LAYCOE WITH THREE-YEAR PACT

PORTLAND (AP)—Directors of the Portland Hockey Club said Tuesday coach Hal Laycoe has been signed to a new three-year contract. Buckaroos topped the southern division of the Western Hockey League in regular season play last season, then lost to the Spokane Comets in the semifinals. In 1961, Portland won the Lester Patrick Cup.

DAVID GROOS

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal Candidate

REPORTS ON THE ELECTION

If money alone is going to win this election then we're going to lose. But money isn't everything, and we Liberals have some things that make up for the lack of it. For instance, not everyone knows that all our workers in Esquimalt-Saanich are volunteers, and none of them are paid either now or on Election Day. We think this is a pretty good thing. At least we know who is on our side. If we can get three or four hundred people to work long hours for us for nothing, and we did in the by-election, it is a sign that the Liberal Party is in pretty good shape.

... AND OUR NEXT MEETING

THURSDAY, MAY 17-8 P.M.

MILL BAY COMMUNITY HALL, MILL BAY

EVERYBODY WELCOME

Challenge Made On School Costs

GANGES—C. R. Horel, president of the Chamber of Commerce here, and G. M. Heinekey, school trustee, challenged the B.C. government's claim that it is paying 50 per cent of the Gulf Islands' school costs.

They spoke at a public meeting attended by Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle C. Westwood and Herbert Bruch, MLA for Esquimalt.

The two men said grants to the school district are decreasing each year and property owners are being forced to pay more towards education costs.

GANGES—Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce has requested the B.C. Toll Authority to alter a ruling that each child using the Gulf Island ferry system be required to have a separate book of commuters' tickets.

The request asks that as a convenience to parents, one book of children's tickets be allowed to be used by all children of a family.

DUNCAN—A 32-man timber delegation from Europe feels there is a possibility of increased Canadian lumber trade with the European Common Market.

The representatives of five countries were guests of the B.C. government and logging firms.

Wolfgang Eschenburg, president of the Timber Export Association, and spokesman for the German group, felt that as timber resources in the Common Market countries are limited, Canada's chances to sell lumber there are greater than ever.

The new exchange rate of the Canadian dollar is favorable, he added.

DUNCAN—A sum of $1,200 will be spent by the Rotary club on the construction of permanent rest rooms for Rotary park by the Cowichan River.

Park project chairman, Ted Robson, emphasized at a club meeting the importance of preparing the property for use by the public this summer.

DUNCAN—A meeting of the Goldstream Indian Village Co-operative will be held tonight in the office of the department of Indian Affairs here.

Chief Edwin Underwood of East Saanich, chairman of the board of directors, said the purpose of the meeting is to promote sale of Cowichan Indian sweaters and handicrafts.

Ron Sampson, local superintendent of Indian Affairs will attend the meeting.

LADYSMITH—First to win a claim under the new Sheep Protection Act here was R. Mackie of Malone Road, who was awarded $54 when three of his sheep were worried to death by dogs.

The village commission had to set up a fund under the act when it extended its boundaries last year.

LADYSMITH—Directors of the Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce have re-elected president Stan Heys to his third term of office.

Ed Timothy was named first vice-president; Orval Delcourt, second vice-president; Steve Jackson, secretary, and Harvey Wallace, treasurer. Directors are Tom McCormick, John MacNaughton, Warren Wellwood, Bob Anderson, Harold Cross, and Ross Root.

LADYSMITH—The annual junior trout derby at Fourth Nanaimo Lake will be held June 17 under the sponsorship of the Ladysmith Sportsmen's Club.

This year the derby will have special prizes for boys 16 to 18 years who will not be in competition with the main contestants under 16 years.

Don McKay, chairman, Onni Parta and Ivan Wicklund are in charge of the derby which offers a trophy and $50 in prizes to the young anglers.

NANAIMO—Hugh Heath was re-elected president of the Nanaimo branch of Canadian National Institute for the Blind, at the annual meeting held here recently. Ald. Bus MacDonald was re-elected vice-president.

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo got a $50-a-month increase in pay Monday night.

A bylaw to amend the mayor's remuneration to grant him $2,800 a year plus $1,400 for expenses was introduced in line with a recent amendment to the Municipal Act which permits the mayor to receive a maximum of $4,800. The mayor's remuneration totals $3,600 a year.

NANAIMO—Trial of Gary Parkinson and Peter Louis Martin Day on charges of manslaughter opened Tuesday before Mr. Justice G. S. Hutcheson.

The accused are charged in connection with an attack last fall on Donald Thomas Butler of Courtenay, who died after being involved in a street fight.

NANAIMO—A $6,000 grant to the Chamber of Commerce for tourist promotion here was approved by city council Monday night. The chamber said an outstanding tourist year is anticipated because of Seattle's World's Fair.

PORT ALBERNI—Work started this week on the site for the First United Church and education centre, scheduled for completion in early fall.

Contract for construction has been let to Port Home Builders Ltd.

The sanctuary will seat 300, with seating for another 75 in the balcony and 30 in the choir loft. Sunday school and recreational facilities will be in adjoining buildings.

UCLUELET—A three-inch naval gun from the wreck of the federal fisheries patrol ship Thelapval, has been recovered by members of the local Scuba Club.

The wreck lies in 10 fathoms of water in Barclay Sound. The patrol boat sank in 1932, reportedly while chasing prohibition era rum runners.

LADYSMITH GIRL WINS SCHOLARSHIP OF $150

LINDA GEERNART
... to school of arts

LADYSMITH—The Recreation Commission here has announced that Linda Geernart has been chosen winner of its first annual scholarship to the Summer School of Arts at UBC.

Miss Geernart's application for the seven-week theatre course was picked by the university's extension department. The scholarship is for $150.

"I must offer the sincere appreciation of this department for the commission's pioneer venture in providing this scholarship. I hope it will stand as an example to similar organizations throughout the province," Ian Docherty, co-ordinator of the UBC extension department, told the commission by letter.

HILLCREST MOVE WILL AFFECT 270

Mill Shutdown Decision Today

Management of Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake will decide today "when to pull the pin," shutting down its entire operation and idling 270 men.

Company director Peter Stone said the mill shutdown is inevitable "unless the loggers come back to work," and that the log supply now is sufficient to last only "a very short time."

Hillcrest and 70 loggers are involved in a dispute involving termination of a free bus run between Duncan and the mill site at Mesachie Lake. The logging halted May 7 when 18 men who had not used the bus service stayed away from their jobs.

The 70 other men failed to start work after Christmas holidays Jan. 2, following termination of the transportation service at the end of the year.

A private logging contractor was hired by the firm to keep logs coming into the mill, after which all loggers quit.

Negotiations between the company and Duncan Local 180 of International Woodworkers of America broke down and the situation was not improved with a Labor Relations Board "cease and desist" order against the union.

Finally, the IWA district council and Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., an operators' bargaining organization, agreed to negotiate a settlement, holding their first exploratory meeting Tuesday.

District council president Jack Moore said today nothing was resolved in talks so far.

19. Let the metal stand overnight	20. Next morning wash away oil with gasoline	21. Rub together	22. They won't get hot	23. Neither overnight standing nor gasoline removes the MolySLIP!	24. Question: It looks good on paper but will it really work in your car?

When a million British motorists rave about a new product, there must be something to it.

THERE IS. But MolySLIP is no 'miracle' product. By a perfectly straightforward scientific principle MolySLIP reduces friction in engines, differentials, and transmissions* to give your vehicle more power, better performance, longer engine life and measurably greater mileage per gallon. Millions of Britons and continental Europeans have proved this to their satisfaction. Now it's your turn.

It is emphasized that MolySLIP is not an additive. It is an oil supplement that virtually 'plates' metal surfaces with molecules of (MoS₂), one of the most slippery substances known.

HOW THE 'PLATING' TAKES PLACE

A molecule of MolySLIP is a 'sandwich' of one atom of a metal called molybdenum between two atoms of sulphur. And since sulphur atoms are strongly attracted to metal, but not to each other, they cling to piston and cylinder walls... yet slide freely over each other.

REAL ECONOMIES RESULT

Since it takes less power to move an engine when friction is reduced, it also takes less gasoline. Supplement your engine oil with MolySLIP—allowing approximately 300 miles for the 'plating' to take proper effect—and you will not only save gas, but you can look forward to longer engine life and lower maintenance costs.

PERFORMANCE IS MUCH IMPROVED TOO

By reducing friction, MolySLIP improves power and acceleration.

And when you add MolySLIP 'G' to your transmission* (manual only), and to your differential and steering gear-box, the effects of the 'plating' are most noticeable. Noise, particularly back axle hum, disappears for good. Gear changing is smoother. Steering is lighter.

LONGER ENGINE LIFE

Overnight standing and excessive choking do not remove the protection of MolySLIP. The 'plating' remains, even when oil has drained or been washed away. The most dramatic illustration of this was at a rally when a competitor's crank case drain plug fell out. Though this is not recommended, he drove 10 miles to the nearest control point without oil. There was no damage to the engine.

MOLYSLIP

ADD MolySLIP TO THE OIL IN YOUR CAR

MolySLIP was developed by the SLIP GROUP OF COMPANIES (MolySLIP DIVISION) IN GREAT BRITAIN, AND IS MARKETING IN CANADA BY SLIPCO CHEMICALS OF CANADA.

The Technical Story

MolySLIP actually 'plates' bearing surfaces with permanent MoS₂ anti-friction molecules. Size of MolySLIP MoS₂ particles average 1/2 to 1/3 micron, or .000011", thus allowing 99.8% to pass through oil filters. The particles are perfectly suspended. (Imperfect suspension has been the cause of failure in MoS₂ products in the past). MolySLIP contains anti-rust and anti-corrosion additives for protection during free standing periods. MolySLIP and MolySLIP 'G' have been made to blend with all of the latest automotive lubricants including the multi-viscosity grades.

Developed and proven

In England where cars have 30% sales tax and gasoline is 60¢ a gallon.

Introduced over two years ago, MolySLIP had a slow start. The British motorist doesn't go 'round pouring strange liquids into his car. His car costs a lot and costs a lot to run. He wants it to last a long time. But the word spread. MolySLIP did work. Now millions of motorists in Britain, and continental Europe too, enjoy more economical motoring, better performance and longer engine life, because of MolySLIP.

Magazine Criticism Angers City Chinese

By JOHN MANNING

Victoria's Chinese community has reacted with anger and disgust to recent statements in a national magazine (Maclean's) by Alan Phillips that they live under the leadership of criminals.

"Canada's Chinese are controlled by a group which, by our standards, is criminal," says Phillips. "They (the Chinese) pay lip service to our government but it is their own that they obey, their local Chinese government, the Chinese Benevolent Association."

"Home, even to those born here, is some district in south-east China."

Phillips also maintained that many Chinese born in Canada speak only a few words of English. The reason being, he says, is again the Chinese Benevolent Association.

LEADERS TO BLAME
"The CBA leaders who profit by segregation bar the way. They oppose our social system, which presupposes a sense of responsibility. . . they subvert our legal systems, they help our politicians with the promise of Chinese votes."

"The article is inflammatory!" said Fun Lee, president of Victoria's Chinese Benevolent Association. "It gives the impression that the Chinese are nothing but a bunch of crooks."

Mr. Lee, who is a third-generation Canadian, said Victoria's CBA was not in any way out to defeat the government's efforts to break a Chinese smuggling ring. Nor was it in any way dominated by Triad, an ancient secret Chinese criminal organization.

NO PROPAGANDA
"We have not issued any propaganda, presented any briefs to parliament or sent any delegate to represent us with any meeting with the prime minister or any other member of the cabinet."

Ice Flakes Seen By Pilot
EDWARDS AIR BASE, Calif. (UPI)—The "mysterious objects" filmed by the X-15 rocket plane on its world record altitude flight two weeks ago were actually flakes of ice, it was disclosed today.

Engineers for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, after studying films taken on the soaring flight to 46,7 miles high, concluded the "spots" were from ice tanks off the aircraft's fuel tanks and caused liquid oxygen.

"We don't carry on any war with the government, underground or otherwise. Further, we have no connection with any Triad Society."

"He says the Chinese have a different viewpoint of the law because they have been a conquered nation for several thousand years. I presume he must mean several thousand years before Christ," said Mr. Lee, "as we are only in 1900 A.D. It makes me wonder just where his history was derived from and how a statement such as that can really justify his conclusion."

Other prominent figures in Victoria's Chinese community were equally upset.

FALSEHOODS
"That article is filled with falsehoods," said David Lee, Principal of the Chinese School, Fisgard St. "Alan's statement that many Canadian born Chinese do not speak English is entirely untrue. I know of no Chinese born in Victoria who does not speak good English."

Mrs. Bessie Tang, 2624 Douglas St., who was born in Victoria and attended Victoria High School said: "My children speak English 90 per cent of the time. Their mother tongue is taught to them only so they may understand something of Chinese culture."

"To say our loyalty is towards China is nothing but nonsense!" she continued. "All this business in that magazine sounds like something in the dark ages."

GOOD NEIGHBORS
When asked to comment on Phillip's statement that of the 31 ethnic groups in Canada the Chinese per capita are fourth highest in criminal convictions, Deputy Chief of police Harry Mercer said:

"They like their gambling all right, but its not like it used to be. I'd say the Chinese in this area are good neighbors, they're real fine people."

A comment on the article made by City Welfare Administrator William Hooson said that from the end result point of view the Chinese in Victoria are not creating any social problems.

Well-known former principal of Victoria High School H. L. Smith, who taught 41 years at the school had this to say in retaliation to the article:

"We are fortunate to have them at the school. They have been the most excellent students and school citizens. There were certainly fewer cases of misconduct on the part of the Chinese than the average occidental students."

FBI 'TAIL' IRKS SOVIET JOURNALIST

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Soviet journalist working in the United States complained Tuesday night over being constantly tailed by FBI agents.

C. Kondrashov said in an article in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia that when he was in Seattle eight FBI cars and 12 agents were used to follow him and another Soviet journalist.

Soviet reporters also were shadowed in New York and Washington, he said, but it was "not so obvious" as in Seattle.

The publication of Kondrashov's article coincided with the visit to Moscow of Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary. Salinger has let it be known he will ask Soviet officials to ease working conditions of American journalists in Moscow.

$70,000 'Green Belt' Guards Approach to City

The B.C. government has spent $70,000 to set up a "green belt" approach to Victoria between Goldstream and Thetis Lake.

It is a Capital District Improvement Commission project.

The commission has bought 200 acres of land with the money, and had planned to buy another 200 for another $70,000.

However, it was not possible to acquire it, partly because of high price and partly because some of the owners wouldn't sell anyway.

Idea of the green belt came from Major Cuthbert Holmes.

However, some of the land has already been developed. But the CIDC plans to buy the remaining property, although Mr. Brown said this will not be possible for some time.

"Victoria will be one of the few places in North America where drivers can approach the city through natural scenery," he said.

Two firms were engaged. Two realty firms were assigned the task of buying the 200 acres at the beginning of the year.

Mr. Brown said he hoped there could be a completely unspoiled "green belt" between Thetis Lake and Goldstream parks.

However, some of the land has already been developed. But the CIDC plans to buy the remaining property, although Mr. Brown said this will not be possible for some time.

"Victoria will be one of the few places in North America where drivers can approach the city through natural scenery," he said.

'Jack-in-Box' Pops Out At John D.

By DAVE MCINTOSH
SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP) — For generations, there has been a latent feeling in the Maritimes that the Atlantic provinces haven't received a fair shake in Confederation.

Sometimes this feeling, like a ards, proclaiming "God save Jack-in-the-box, jumps out suddenly at politicians when they will," "Maritimes yes, Canada no" and "Grit or Tory, same old story."

This happened to Prime Minister Diefenbaker on Tuesday night on his arrival here to address a public meeting.

This time the trigger on the 1,450-seat high school auditorium was released by the 39 students from seven Maritimes universities and colleges. They conducted an orderly

Promise to Harness Fundy Tides

He also said his administration will give the "fullest consideration" to possibly power harnessing of the ocean tides which sweep up the Bay of Fundy.

He said at another point that his government will establish an Atlantic development board to expand economic opportunities for the seaside provinces.

This board would make recommendations to the government for action and he hoped the first business of the board would be a new study of feasibility of building a canal across the Isthmus of Chignecto linking New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The student demonstration did not appear to be aimed so much at Mr. Diefenbaker as at "Upper Canada" in general.

One-Day Campaign In Nova Scotia

Mr. Diefenbaker was to fly today to New Glasgow and Halifax for a one-day campaign in Nova Scotia. He will go to Prince Edward Island Thursday and to Western Ontario Friday.

Thursday he drove 165 miles through southern New Brunswick from Fredericton to St. Stephen, St. Andrews, St. George and Saint John, all on the Fundy shore.

At St. Stephen, the prime minister in a speech before about 300 persons, including many teenagers, said Liberal Leader Pearson is advocating "gunboat philosophy" by proposing that Canada declare a 12-mile territorial limit unilaterally.

The limit now is three miles and fishermen have been pressing for an extension.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's policy would require naval units on both coasts to enforce it.

"This is too dangerous a sport even for a political candidate," he said.

His government was in touch with other nations trying to get agreement on extension of territorial limits. This was a fair and far better means of achieving a 12-mile limit than by declaring one unilaterally.

"It doesn't look too hopeful now," he conceded. The nations involved were standing on their own rights.

Artillerymen Mark 46th Anniversary

Members of the 15th Brigade Association, Canadian Field Artillery, will gather this Saturday evening at 6 p.m. in the Ingham Hotel to celebrate the 46th anniversary of their departure for overseas service in the First World War.

Archie Wills, president of the association, who, along with Ralph Cruickshank, Gordon Cameron and Alf Dowell, are making arrangements for the event, reports that close to 70 will attend.

Among those coming from distant points will be Dr. John Helmecken, of Santa Anna, Calif., grandson of the first medical man in B.C. and first Speaker of the Legislative Assembly. Dr. Ralph Smethurst is coming from Walla, Walla, Wash., and Pat Riley from San Francisco. Allan McIntosh, who spent 35 years in the Belgian Congo, will be here from La Mirada, Calif.

Harry Boyle, prominent lawyer of Penticton; W. H. Creech, La Jolla, Calif.; Wilbur Dawson, bank manager of White Rock; Jack Hickey and Halley Jackson, of Vancouver, will also attend. There will be a number of up-landers, and others from the mainland.

Dr. William Newton, of Sidney, who served as a signaller in the unit, will be the main speaker.

"Fall in" will be sounded at 6.30 by the unit's original trumpeter, Dave Donaldson, followed by the rum ration. A "Silent Toast" will be given, not only for those who fell in action, but to the 74 members who have died since the unit returned home in 1919.

Victoria Area Meat Inspection Bylaw Planned

Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee Tuesday recommended all councils pass a uniform bylaw prohibiting sale of uninspected meat.

Eskimaut municipality already has such a bylaw and Victoria council gave three readings to its draft immediately before the intermunicipal committee meeting.

The bylaw will have to be passed by Saanich, Oak Bay, Central Saanich and Sidney councils before metro health board sets up a temporary inspection depot at the city scales on Store Street.

The uniform bylaw provides penalties between $25 and $100 for anyone convicted of offering for sale uninspected meat.

The bylaw covers beef, pork, mutton and goat meat but not poultry or rabbit.

Metro health chairman Coun. G. K. Sammon said the latter two present special inspection problems and bylaws covering them will be introduced later.

In an address to the Ontario Medical Association on the causes of arteriosclerosis — hardening of the arteries — he said high blood cholesterol levels were implicated in the artery-hardening process, leading to possible strokes and heart attacks. He pointed out that a high cholesterol level was much more prevalent in the West than in the Orient where animal fat does not compose so great a part of the diet.

He suggested a research program to determine the substance in some foods that causes a rise in the cholesterol level.

Fiery N.B. Premier, Pearson Hit Tax Deal

By ALAN DONNELLY
DALHOUSIE, N.B. (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson and New Brunswick's fiery Premier Robichaud took turns Tuesday night in attacking the Diefenbaker government's new tax deal with the provinces.

Mr. Pearson said the federal government has "entirely failed" to give the provinces a fair deal.

The richer provinces would be the main beneficiaries, and the poorer provinces would lose by comparison.

Premier Robichaud, a hard-hitting orator, accused the federal Conservatives of "punishing" New Brunswickers for having defeated the provincial Conservative government in 1960.

"We are here to defeat the worst prime minister this country has had," he said flatly. Lending force to his words were nine provincial cabinet ministers arrayed on the platform behind him.

Mr. Pearson's promised new tax deal for the provinces: Equalization payments that would ensure all provinces equal revenues per head of population, from the tax fields shared with the federal government.

"That is the only way the provinces can afford similar standards of services for their people."

PREMIER ACCOMPANIES

Mr. Pearson was accompanied by Premier Robichaud on Tuesday's campaign swing through three North Shore constituencies, including two of the three New Brunswick seats held by the Liberals in the last Parliament. Conservatives held the other seven.

Today Mr. Pearson flies to Nova Scotia—his first visit in this campaign to the province where Conservatives swept all 12 constituencies in the 1958 election.

The campaign trials of Mr. Pearson and Prime Minister Diefenbaker cross at New Glasgow, with Mr. Diefenbaker scheduled to leave the town a half-hour before Mr. Pearson arrives.

Tuesday the Liberal leader kept his electioneering in low gear during appearances in Northumberland-Miramichi and Gloucester ridings, both traditional Liberal strongholds.

He made brief speeches in front of town halls at Newcastle and Chatham and later, following a lobster supper, in front of the court house at Bathurst.

At each place he voiced confidence about the election outcome to audiences ranging from 100 to 250 and reiterated the points of the Liberal platform aimed at giving "work to everybody who wants work."

At Bathurst, a brief speech by Premier Robichaud was punctuated by repeated whoops from the town fire alarm.

"The fire of Liberalism has not been extinguished," the premier cracked, between interruptions.

The Liberal leader also repeated his promise of unilateral action to declare a 12-mile Canadian territorial waters limit to aid Canadian inshore fishermen.

In an apparent reply to Conservative claims that this action might bring United States trade reprisals, he said:

"I think we can do it without getting into trouble with the United States or anybody else."

Mr. Pearson described as "not true" the government's claim that repeated budget deficits since 1957 resulted from increased federal payments to the provinces.

"They happened unintentionally because the government mismanaged our finances."

The government's claim of increased aid to the provinces "sounds big only until you examine it."

ENVY OF MANY A CITY TEEN-AGER is young Don Aiberg, 1516 Mt. Douglas Cross Road, who has just welcomed another addition to his family of animals. The newcomer is a three-day-old Palomino foal Don is showing here with the assistance of the colt's mother, Mona Lisa, and his pet dog, Sandy, a sleek Weimaraner. Out behind the barn Don also has two registered Angus beef, a heifer and a steer. How does he look after them all? "Well, it keeps me pretty busy, all right," Don admits as he lists the clubs, to which his animals gain him admittance. With Mona (and now the foal, who was sired by George Porter's registered Palomino stallion, Oregon City) Don is active in the Mt. Douglas Junior Trail Riders' Club, with Sandy he goes to Dog Obedience School, and with those Black Angus he works in the 4H Beef Cattle Club. —(Times Photo.)

MONTE ROBERTS

I have to hand a missive from Mrs. Florence Barr which should, once and for all, dispose of the base canard that animal lovers are so intent on being kind to animals they have become bereft of a sense of humor.

(I have been accused of this myself, being an animal lover from 'way back, and am happy to produce proof it just ain't so.)

Mrs. Barr sent along a recent copy of the official publication of the Cats' Protection League, Prestbury Lodge, 29 Church Street, Slough, Bucks. (Need I say, England?)

And I'd like you to read a few of the advertisements seeking homes for cats and kittens (all of them, by CPL rule, must be neutered before being put up for adoption):

- Mother and daughter seek accommodation. Separate rooms essential.
- Young brothers training as all-in wrestlers need lodgings with space for violent practice.
- Exquisite, sensitive, highly-bred lady offers her companionship to true kindred soul; would prefer owner of tried fish shop or similar.
- Gentleman of the old school, handsome, strong and determined, seeks rooms near good hunting country.
- Small, arrogant cat wants home with meek, gentle people.
- Efficient sisters offer services, light housework and dishwashing; would consider dairy work.
- Dream cat, absolutely perfect, seeks home with good, satin cushions on every chair.

It's a pity all these wonderbar cats are available only to the residents over 'ome. I'd be happy to have any one or pair of them come stay at our house.

Except the small, arrogant cat who wants home with meek, gentle people.

That's the way things are at our house right now.

Saanich is determined to try to make its "tree tubs" as famous as the city's hanging baskets.

The tubs constructed to contain trees for the beautification of Douglas Street, will also have flowers next year, Reeve Stanley Murphy said today.

He said bulbs will be planted in the tubs at the base of the trees in the fall.

A total of 141 trees will be planted along the nearly three-quarter of mile section of Cloverdale Avenue, the revee disclosed.

There will also be some tree planting on Reynolds after it has been reconstructed this year, he said.

Unoccupied Boats Found at Sooke; One Wrecked

Two unoccupied boats—one wrecked—have been found near Sooke: in the past 24 hours and RCAF Air Sea Rescue and U.S. Coast Guard authorities are investigating their origins.

The wrecked boat was found on the beach between Mary's Hill and Becher Bay late Tuesday afternoon. Only the bottom and part of one side were intact.

The 18-foot vessel carried the markings "CQ, Washington" and "White Cove".

The coast guard says the boat probably broke its moorings and drifted from the Washington coast.

The second boat—a 14-ft. inboard—was found drifting four miles south of Church Island at 6 a.m. today and was towed into Sooke Harbor by a fishboat.

Sooke RCMP said the boat has a 3½-h.p. Briggs and Stratton inboard engine, a green bottom and white sides, and has the name "Chum" painted in red on the side.

It is undamaged.

A woman was fined $300 by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today when she was convicted of selling liquor illegally.

Court was told two police officers in plain clothes went to the premises at 722 Market Street, and were admitted by the woman, Joan Dunbar.

A number of people there ordered rounds of drinks and were served rye whisky and rum. The policemen ordered drinks and paid for them with marked money.

Defence counsel Mrs. Marney Stevenson contended there was no case against her client because the marked money was not found in a search made later.

Magistrate Ostler said the marked notes could have been concealed during the search.

WINNERS ELUDE $200 PRIZE

Officials of Victoria's centennial committee went to the people again today in an effort to find one of those elusive, lucky souvenir bills.

With the jackpot built up to $200, centennial officials went out on the street and asked the people outside the office, at the bus stop, to name a page, column and listing from the directory for them to phone.

They phoned Mrs. Fred Kitchener, 142 Virago Crescent, but she didn't have one. The search continues.

City Traffic Engineer Quits Post

Said Aftermath Of Shakeup

By JOHN MIKA

City traffic engineer Norman Worsley quit today after 12 years service in City Hall and speculation was rife that more resignations would follow in the engineering department.

Mr. Worsley's resignation—"effective immediately"—was handed in Tuesday afternoon and he spent this morning cleaning out his desk. His salary had been $700 a month.

One of the most popular section heads in City Hall, Mr. Worsley was part of a developing "action team" which did most of the work behind recent city planning projects.

His resignation hit City Hall like a bombshell but he declined to reveal his reason.

WILL SEEK WORK

Mr. Worsley—who is 39, married and father of three children—said he had no immediate plans except to seek work in this area. A native Victorian, he is both a professional engineer and a professional surveyor.

Although he would not discuss his resignation, it obviously was a protest—first concrete symptom of rumored discontent in the department.

It follows a departmental shake-up last week which had overtones of comic opera in its suddenness.

In that move, city architect Rod Clark was shifted out of his office overnight as head of the planning and inspection division and designated as a planning officer. He was replaced by water and sewer engineer William Jorgenson.

It was preceded by a stormy department heads' meeting which produced shouting audible beyond the closed doors, according to repeated rumors.

Ald. Michael Griffin, chairman of traffic committee, said he would not comment on the resignation because it was an administrative matter.

He said he did not know whether the city would seek to obtain a traffic engineer as a replacement.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said he had no comment on the resignation.

DID NOT ASK

Asked if it was a forced or voluntary resignation, he replied: "We didn't ask for it."

Mr. Worsley was educated at St. Michael's School here and Brentwood College, graduating from the University of B.C. with a civil engineer's diploma in 1950.

The same year, he entered the city engineer's department in the surveying section. In 1955 he was placed at the head of the traffic section, the post he held until today.

254 Acres on Beach, Balance 'By Choice'

Deputy Recreation Minister David Turner today described as "cockeyed" a morning newspaper story that the B.C. government has given away $260,000 worth of timber for $50,000 worth of parkland.

He explained that the recreation department is making an agreement with a logging company for a straight exchange of $260,000 worth of timber for $260,000 worth of parkland.

The deal was worked out so the department could acquire 254 acres on Long Beach, 10 miles south of Tofino. The land is appraised at $50,000.

In exchange the government has offered Bedwell River Timber Co., the owners, $50,000 worth of timber in Strathcona Park. But the company said it would not be economically feasible to cut such a small area.

Bedwell is owned by Sam Craig, a Tofino logging operator for many years.

DR. DAVID TURNER ... good acquisition

EQUAL VALUE

Now the government is offering Mr. Craig the $260,000 worth of timber provided it gets land of an equal value in exchange.

The recreation department will choose the parkland it wants for the extra $210,000. It could be anywhere in the province—possibly in the Victoria area—said Dr. Turner.

Mr. Craig would have to buy it and hand it over before he could cut any more than $50,000 worth of timber.

"It's like buying a car. The $50,000 is just the down payment," said Dr. Turner.

He said the area in Strathcona Park to be logged is along the watershed of the Bedwell River, at the southwest corner of the huge park.

It was half-logged years ago and contains two abandoned mines, he said.

"As a wilderness recreation area it's worth nothing. It's completely expendable."

The Long Beach land the department is getting includes a mile and a half waterfront at Schooner Cove. Land on either side of it was already government-owned, and there now will be an unbroken four-mile stretch of beach for future development.

"This is one of the most exciting acquisitions since I've been with the department," said Dr. Turner.

He said it will ensure forever that there will be a "great" recreational area at Long Beach. The land is five miles north of a 50-campsite development at Green Point which will be open about June 1.

STEEL BAND POPULAR

25,000 See Fair In Opening Days

By JOHN BASSETT

Record crowds continued to throng through the assorted sections of the Victoria Centennial Exhibition Tuesday, with conservative estimates at 25,000 persons for the first two days.

Today—Children's Day—should be the top of the six-day extravaganza as the tots get in free to test the rides and watch their 4-H friends exhibit stock in the agricultural section.

The group which continues to outshine all others would appear to be the Trinidad Steel Band... they toll with their modified oil drums in the crowded confines of the Curling Rink, and each time they emit their sounds the rink becomes "the place to go"...

Temporary Club Room For Elderly Persons 'Duty of Government'

By AB KENT

Provision of a stop-gap meeting room for the city's elderly should be a provincial government responsibility, a Victoria Labor Council delegate said today.

Gus Gildemeester, VLC delegate to Victoria Senior Citizens' Campaign Council, said responsibility for the elderly should fall to government welfare authorities.

He noted that almost a year had passed since he first suggested a street-level meeting place in a downtown location where senior citizens could meet, have a cup of tea, and while away a solitary hour.

"It's no good having an out of the way place, up a flight of stairs, because many of these people can't climb stairs," Mr. Gildemeester said.

"All that's needed is a place where they can go to be together. The government should provide that. The Senior Citizens' Council can maintain it, pay the light bills."

When he first raised the idea through the labor council, he suggested a businessman or group of men could provide an empty store for the purpose.

There has never been an offer, he said.

It was not his intention to have a permanent location because eventually there will be senior citizens' recreation centres built by joint municipal-provincial effort.

Meanwhile, there is nothing for the elderly people whose limited incomes force them to live in humble circumstances, mostly in the downtown area.

Hotel Figure, Maj. Merston, Dies Suddenly

Former head of Vancouver Island Corps of Commissionaires, Major William C. Merston died suddenly this morning at his home 1159 Beach Drive. He was 77.

Maj. Merston was a well-known figure in Victoria where he moved from England in 1908.

He gained great knowledge of the interior of the province during his years as land surveyor. He served overseas in the First World War with the 7th Battalion, winning the DCM and Military Cross. He also took part in the first Canadian trench raid.

Upon coming to Victoria he built the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, and was owner of the hotel for some years.

He was past president of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club and member of the Union Club of Victoria since 1911.

He is survived by the widow, Marsha, a son William in Vancouver, and two daughters, Anne in Victoria, and Pamela in England.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Who was Peter Stuyvesant?—L.C.H.

A. He was the last Dutch governor of the colony of New Netherland, now known much better as New York. Born in 1592, he came to the colony in 1646, and his rule soon became autocratic and tyrannical. "We derive our authority from God... not from the pleasure of a few ignorant subjects," he said on one occasion. He died in 1672, eight years after the British took over the colony.

"CENTENNIAL WELCOME" for crew of HMS Belfast during the cruiser's stay here was urged today by Victoria Mayor R. E. Wilson, who asked citizens to invite sailors into their homes. The RN cruiser is due at 9 a.m. Friday for a five-day stay, honoring the city's 100th birthday. She will be berthed at HMCS Naden. Citizens who wish to invite crew members are asked to call EV 3-6612.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Spring Showers Inspire Search for Gift Ideas

By PENNY SAVER

Here we go again! Penny seems to have developed a mania for finding shower gifts. Perhaps it is the showery weather (a very watery pun found floating in Penny's water-logged brain).

If you feel there is a need for a little light on the subject, why not give lamps Penny saw in one store. Shades are of plastic, in shape like a wasp nest or tall and round. Each lamp stands on three short wooden legs. Wasp nest lamps, in turquoise and gold, are about 16 inches high and sell for $1.98.

Tall round styles are about 18 inches high, come in pink, gold and turquoise with plastic flowers stapled on outside of shade and are priced at $2.98.

Pottery items always make suitable gifts but perhaps you are looking for something different. Penny is also becoming an expert on everything "different". Pottery I saw recently has a tiled effect on inside, is finished with gold paint on bottom.

Tiles on each piece are shaded from blue to aqua to gray or brown to orange, etc. There are ash trays at 98 cents, shallow bowls at $1.98, deep bowls at $2.98 and a three-tier cake plate at $3.50.

Although not particularly suitable for a shower party or as a shower gift, paper cups and plates that Penny saw will certainly prove a boon for other occasions. No plain white cardboard-looking plates these! Plates are plastic-coated so that hot foods may be served on them.

Cups have same construction plus handles. Best part is that cups and plates can be obtained with matching floral designs and bordered in a plain color to give the effect of china. Thirty nine-inch plates are only 79 cents; five nine-ounce cups are 19 cents.

Call Penny at EV 2-3131 if you wish to know where she shopped for these items.

DEAR ABBY...

Then It's Usually Too Late

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I strenuously disagree with your advice to NO CHOPIN. There is no better way to kill a child's interest in music than to force him to take lessons and practice when he would rather be doing something else. As a boy I had considerable talent and might have made music my career, except for the seven years I was forced to take lessons. This prevented me from ever becoming a decent pianist. I think "No Chopin" should be allowed to forget the piano until he has a natural desire to take it up.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN CHOPIN.
DEAR MIGHT: The best years for learning are the youthful years. And if children are permitted to put off the study of math, science, history, grammar, religion AND music until they have a "natural desire" to learn, many would never learn. I would like to know how a child with musical talent can develop it without instruction and practice. And so would millions of parents.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem with our women's bowling league. We want to know how long a woman, who is pregnant, should be allowed to stay on the team. We want to set down a rule, but find it very difficult. Can you, or any experienced lady bowlers help us?

LADY BOWLERS
DEAR BOWLERS: The very thought of a pregnant woman bowling makes my back ache. Why must you have a rule? Let each pregnant bowler bowl as long as her doctor allows her to.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed the discussion pro and con in your column about double beds and twin beds. My husband kept complaining that I was too fat and I crowded him in our big double bed. So he went out and bought twin beds. Now he sleeps with me in MY twin bed because he gets "lone some."

BABIES THRIVE ON PACIFIC

IT'S THAT FRESHER, SWEETER FLAVOR OF THE ONLY EVAPORATED MILK PROCESSED IN B.C.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Mother spanked me and sent me back!"

Couple To Live In Quebec

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Paul Klick, who were married in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, are both members of the Royal Canadian Airforce, and they will make their home at St. Adolph-de-Howard, P.Q.

The bride is the former Helene (Dianne) Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irvine of Victoria, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Klick of Aldergrove, B.C.

Dr. J. L. W. McLean performed the ceremony; C. C. Warren was organist and Miss Kathleen Paulin sang "Because" during signing of the register.

Mr. Irvine gave his step-daughter in marriage. She chose a gown of white silk peau de soie with floor-length skirt highlighted with side gathers and bustle back and a bodice with scoop neckline and bell sleeves accented with bows. A pearl coronet held the three-quarter-length veil and she carried red roses.

Three attendants, Misses Bonnie Wilson, Paddy Jackson and Margaret Meulbik wore Arctic blue gowns of crystal charm in short length with petal shaped hats en tone. They carried pink carnations.

Three-year-old Daryl Wilson was ring bearer. Best man was Bob Klick, and the ushers, Don Klick and Murray Robbins.

Reception was held in Holyrood House where a three-tier cake was cut. Wilf Wilson, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast.

The honeymoon was spent up-Island, the bride travelling in a pink floral print suit with matching accessories.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilhuly of Kelso, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Schleppe of Quesnel, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hay of Campbell River.

Fashion Showing At Mt. View High

An interesting fashion show is planned for Wednesday, May 23, in the auditorium at Mount View High School, when girls of the home economics class present ensembles they have designed and made during the school year. Show is to be presented in five scenes: Peppermint Lounge, in which sports skirts will be presented; Birthday Party, for the pretty party frocks; Street Scene for daytime clothes; Travel Bureau for various styles, and Matinee, for cotton dresses. The girls will act as commentators and models. Mrs. R. A. Fraser, home economics teacher at the school, is in charge of arrangements. There will also be a display by pupils of the industrial arts department.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Modern Techniques Can Curb Superfluous Hair

Folks differ in their original wanted hairs, and the dark or pattern of superfluous hair distribution and thickness. Some very young women have a heavy growth of hair on their legs and arms and may even have some on the face. Others may have a very light growth. However, the distribution and thickness of superfluous hair also is definitely connected with the aging process, or changes in the glandular system.

No doubt the glandular changes at menopause often are responsible for these un-heavy growth of hair on the lip or chin rose to 35 per cent. After 60, get-out-the-lawn mower! "No, it really is not this bad. Women differ, of course, and not all are bothered by superfluous hair, and those who are have such wonderful, modern techniques at their disposal. Depilatories, of course, are widely used. If you have a few dark, or coarse hairs on your chin, you can tweeze them away. If you do this, be sure not to jerk the hairs out. You should use a slow, steady pull. You also should pull in the direction in which the hair grows. This is more comfortable and also is important should you ever wish to have them removed by electrolysis. Electrolysis is the only method of permanent removal. Therefore, if you are tired of repeating the tweezing job, or if yours is an out-of-control situation, see a well-trained and experienced electrolysis. Men always have a heavy growth of hair on their face from their first shave on. However, the loss of hair on the legs and the eyebrows is similar to that women experience. Of course, there always are exceptions, to the average in all such matters as superfluous hair.

Sign Language Works Wonders
When Mexican Girls Arrive Here

By JOY POLLARD

For Lupita Echavarría, 15, and her cousin María Rosa, 16, arrival in Canada last September was "a little frightening" but also "very exciting."

"We couldn't speak English," María remembers, "at least we could speak very little English."

Confirmed Lupita: "We could say words like 'mother' and 'father' and 'house', but that was about all."

Despite this language barrier the girls managed to get as far as Victoria without too much difficulty. When they reached St. Ann's Academy though, where they are boarding this year, they found that they had to use sign language in most cases to make themselves understood.

Selesky-Edwards Wedding
In St. Andrew's Chapel

St. Andrew's Chapel in HMCS Naden was scene of a wedding on Saturday evening that united Miss Kathleen Marjorie Edwards and Bryan Russell Selesky. Chaplain J. L. W. McLean officiated and organist was Miss Catherine Shore.

Parents of the young principals are Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Edwards, 1728 Denman Street, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Selesky of Regina, Sask.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of ivory brocade that had dainty teardrop pearls outlining the scoop neckline. The full skirt was styled with a bustle effect at back and was slightly on train. Butterfly veil of nylon net misted from a tiara of crystals and pearls. Red roses were in the bouquet.

The bride's twin sister, Miss Sylvia Edwards, was maid of honor in a turquoise-nylon organza-over-taffeta gown that had a front panel of white lace as highlight. Accessories and headband were white and her colonial bouquet was white carnations.

Seven-year-old Jan Williams was flower girl in a pale yellow nylon frock with white headband and accessories. Her colonial bouquet was of white carnations.

Michael Dunn was best man and ushering guests was Frank O'Neill.

Sweetheart roses and tiny white doves topped the three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by O. Williams, the bride's uncle.

It centred the head table at a reception held in the Dominion Hotel's Terra Cotta Room. A. Taylor proposed the toast. Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, came from Vancouver for the ceremony.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Banff the bride donned a light blue boucle suit with matching print blouse, light blue flowered hat and beige accessories.

On their return the newlyweds will make their home in Esquimalt.

Clubwomen's News

Reports—Mrs. W. C. Pollard, president of Canadian Daughters' League, Assembly No. 5, reported on recent provincial council meeting held in Courtenay and meeting of the Local Council of Women when members met in Newstead Hall. Education convener, Mrs. J. C. F. Blowey gave talk on Calixa Laralee, composer of music for "O Canada." Plans were discussed for a garden party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. How to Treat an ACHING BACK

Dodd's KIDNEY PILLS

RESTORE YOUR KIDNEY POWER

MADE IN CANADA

"We would point and try to show with our hands what we were trying to say," Lupita said.

Both girls had taken English in high school in Mexico, but it was nothing like here.

"Pronunciation is especially hard," María states, and Lupita confirms this. "I felt like it was hopeless sometimes, when I was trying to say words like the Canadian girls said them."

By Christmas the young cousins were speaking fairly good English and they were finding their studies much easier.

Why did they choose a school in Canada instead of one closer to home?

"Many reasons," says María, among them, the fact that a cousin came here 10 years ago. Main reason was that their parents felt they would learn English much faster here than in a school in Mexico.

Both María and Lupita graduated before coming here. The system is a little different. They start with three years of kindergarten, which is called "kinder." Then they have six years of grade school called "primaria" and three years high school called "secundaria." Most girls finish school when they are 14 or 15.

Course of studies in high school is quite heavy. There is Spanish, mathematics, chemistry, history, biology, home economics, patriotism, English, sports, geography, art and religion in one year compared with the average of seven subjects taken by Canadian high school students.

Asked how they like Canada both girls replied, "We're glad we came. We have made some good friends and we have learned a lot too."

BOYS? — WELL MAYBE!

"They are a little skeptical about Canadian boys, though. 'We haven't had much opportunity to meet them,' says Lupita, 'but even if we did, I don't think we would like them.'"

When it comes to "dating" the girls verified that teens are teens wherever you go.

"We like boys and go out with boys when we are at home, just like girls do here," smiled María. "Of course, everything depends on our parents, but Lupita and I manage to have a good time."

Girls in Mexico like to dance with all the boys rather than to have a "steady." Especially if he can't dance.

Very definite opinions have been formed by these young boarders about how their Canadian counterparts dress. "They wear high heels and make-up so soon here. At home we at least wait until we're 15."

Food, which seemed to be a favorite topic, is basically the same but prepared differently. As the girls warmed to the subject they pointed out that at home the meals are "hot". They use a lot of chili, peppers, garlic, onions and spices.

When they first arrived here they found the food "awfully flat" and even now they use a great deal of salt and pepper.

TABLES TURNED

With the statement, "Mira ese no trae calcetines y que teo esta," the girls laughingly explained one embarrassing situation they ran into with their language since coming here.

One day around Christmas-time, they were in town shopping and for fun started commenting, in Spanish between themselves about people as they passed.

"We saw a group of boys, María says, "and one of them didn't have any socks on."

One of the girls said, "Mira ese no trae calcetines y que teo esta," which means something like "he doesn't have any socks on, isn't that awful?"

One of the boys turned around and replied, in Spanish, "If you don't like it, that's too bad."

JAVEX-clean diapers are safer

JAVEX purifies and softens diapers to guard against painful diaper rash

Washing and rinsing baby's diapers is not always enough. They may still contain harmful germs, the fabric may be too harsh for baby's tender skin. "Javex" will lift and dissolve non-hygienic residue to give an extra margin of protection and whiteness. Use "Javex" for diapers a mother can trust.

The wise housewife relies on JAVEX® completely.

Javex BLEACH

The fibres of this diaper are dull-looking, stiff and irritating to baby's tender skin. Cause is Residue containing Harmful bacteria the eye alone can't detect.

"Javex" has made the fibres of this diaper hygienically clean. Rough residue has been dissolved from the fabric, diaper now safer and more gentle for your baby. Notice how white the fabric is thanks to "Javex".

JAVEX is a registered trade mark.

Interlocking rings of deviled ham mold, garnished with flowers, make appropriate wedding buffet centerpiece.

This Double-Ring Mold Would Adorn Reception

Delightful to look at, delicious to eat and rather easy to prepare, this "double-ring" deviled ham mold will adorn the at-home wedding reception buffet. Tomato puree gives it an appropriate rosy glow, the ham adds enticing flavor, and frothy whipped cream with green pepper provides enchantment to honor the bride and groom.

DOUBLE-RING DEVILED HAM MOLD

For one ring. Serves 6 to 8. Two envelopes unflavored gelatin, 1/4 cup water, 1 cup boiling water, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 4 tablespoons tomato puree, 2 1/4-ounce cans deviled ham, 1 cup heavy cream whipped, 1/2 cup chopped green pepper, French dressing.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in boiling water with bouillon cubes. Add tomato puree and green pepper. Chill until slightly thickened, then fold in deviled ham, whipped cream and green pepper. Pour into a 1-quart ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold onto salad greens.

NOTE: To make the double-ring, double recipe and join rings. Garnish with flowers.

Janice Cudmore Honored

Miss Janice Cudmore, whose marriage to Raymond Neratko takes place on Saturday, was honored recently at a shower in the Scott Street home of her godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laycock. Corsages of lily of the valley were presented to the honor guest, to her mother, Mrs. Jack Cudmore, and her grandmothers, Mrs. Annie Fouracre and Mrs. T. Cudmore. Gifts were presented in a decorated white swan. Refreshments were served buffet style from a table centred with lily of the valley and pink candles.

Guests included Mrs. D. Fulthorp, Mrs. Donald Fouracre, Mrs. J. Choje, Mrs. Fred Beulah, Mrs. P. Steran, Mrs. J. White, Mrs. R. Johnston, Mrs. Madge Moses, Mrs. Jack Fouracre, Mrs. P. J. Findlay, Mrs. T. Fulthorp, Mrs. H. Nelson, Mrs. T. Cudmore and the Misses L. Huddleston, Judy Johnston and Nancy Cudmore.

Miss Cudmore was also entertained at a shower given by Miss Nancy Cudmore and Miss Judy Johnston, in the latter's home.

Bride-elect was presented with a corsage of pink gardenias, her mother, with Tallman roses, and her grandmothers, with violets and lily of the valley.

A spring flower cart held gifts which included a bride's cook book, made by Mrs. R. F. Johnston and containing the favorite recipe of each guest. Guests included Mrs. J. Bax-

Overseas Relief

Proceeds from tea given by the Lake Hill Women's Institute in the Quadra Street hall recently will be donated to the Federated Women's Institutes' "Freedom From Hunger" fund for overseas relief. Affair was opened by Mrs. Phyllis Graveley who stressed that such help was a constructive way of working for world peace. Baskets of yellow and white flowers centred tea tables. There were stalls of gifts, plants and home cooking and entertainment, provided by students of the Humpty Dumpty Kindergarten.

Blue Jeans Can Spell Elegance

PARIS (Reuters)—Dressing with elegance is not a question of money, say smart Frenchwomen and fashion designers.

In Paris, where the cult of personal appearance is on a par with an appreciation of fine arts, the theory is that while some women are born with a unique flair for fashion, others can acquire it.

"A woman can be essentially elegant in a pair of blue jeans," said the young Vicomtesse Jacqueline de Ribes, well known for her personal good taste and last year voted one of the world's 12 best-dressed women.

She believes that fashion is a question of knowing one's own style—and sticking to it. The vicomtesse says being well dressed is the antithesis of being over-dressed. Likewise, it has nothing to do with elaborate furs, jewels or rich brocades and embroideries. "Fashions may change, but women must adapt their wardrobes to their own personalities and mode of living," she says.

GOOD GROOMING

Mrs. Jean Guyonnet, Parisian society woman, believes good grooming is the first requisite of being well dressed. No matter what price a woman may have paid for her dress, she says, the final effect is ruined if the accessories are not well chosen, and her hair, make-up, stockings, and other details are not impeccable.

Pierre Chanfreau, talented young fashion designer, believes the best way for a woman to be well dressed is not to have too many clothes. "Curiously," he says, "it is often the women who have too much money to spend who put on the poorest show."

Anne Frank's Great Wish Comes True

A little Dutch schoolgirl who believed that "people were really good at heart" is still spreading her "healing power of goodness in places never dreamed of during her short lifetime. It was the hope of Anne Frank, forced into hiding with her parents and sister during the Nazi occupation of Holland to one day be a writer and she amused herself by keeping a diary of her thoughts and day-to-day happenings in a concealed annex over an abandoned warehouse. At 13, her adolescent heart rebelled against the close confines of the hideout and she longed to travel all over the world as soon as hostilities ceased. But for Anne the ending was not a happy one. She was to die in a concentration camp before the war had ended. The diary, left behind in Anne's secret annex, was later published and made into a motion picture. The book and the picture were translated into every language and distributed throughout the world. Anne's hope that she would travel and bring her philosophy of world brotherhood came true even after death. In India, the ladies of the Guild of Service use the film from time to time to raise money for orphaned and abandoned waifs now living in Children's Homes sponsored by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. USC headquarters is at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

$8,000 Payment To Chief Vetoed

(Compiled from CP)

VANCOUVER — Council Tuesday voted against an $8,000 honorarium for retired police chief George Archer after four hours in debate.

The police commission made formal application for the payment to the retired chief at a joint council-commission meeting.

The money, the commission said, was to cover benefits the former chief did not receive while chief, particularly pension fund.

He was chief for 6 1/2 years, receiving $20,000 a year for the first two years and $15,744 each year afterwards.

TRAFFICKER JAILED

VANCOUVER — A drug trafficker was sentenced to six years Tuesday for "spreading deprecation among the innocent."

Ernest Sonstebj, 31, of no fixed address, was found guilty by Magistrate James Bartman of possessing narcotics April 10 for the purpose of trafficking.

Magistrate Bartman also imposed a one-year concurrent term on Sonstebj for possessing narcotics.

POLITICS SHUNNED

NEW WESTMINSTER — A group of shop stewards walked out of a union meeting here rather than hear political speeches by three New Democratic Party federal election candidates.

"Politics has a place, but it isn't a meeting called to discuss negotiations," said Michael Butler, shop steward at nearby Fraser Mills for the International Woodworkers of America.

Mr. Butler said Tuesday he and about 25 others left an IWA meeting of about 70 shop stewards after saying they didn't want to hear speeches from candidates Barry Mather for New Westminster, Erhart Regier for Burnaby-Coquitlam and Robert Prittle for Burnaby-Richmond.

GAGLIARDI CHALLENGED

HANEY — Highway Minister Gagliardi has been challenged to a 20-mile auto race by a fellow Pentecostal minister.

Rev. Danny Griffin, 31, pastor of Little Chapel at nearby Port Hammond, challenged Mr. Gagliardi, Pentecostal minister at Kamloops, to the race which would open Maple Ridge dirt track Monday.

Speedway operator R. G. Morrison said Tuesday he has been able to confirm the highway minister's acceptance. He said Mr. Gagliardi told him earlier he would do everything to be there.

POTENTIAL HAZARD

PRINCE GEORGE — Drying winds have created a forest fire hazard in the Fort St. John district. Forest Service officials said Tuesday the winds have dried out old ground cover, which now is highly combustible, and new green growth isn't yet out.

CLOSE CALL

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY — Olva Tahminen inched his way up the mast of his sinking fishboat as the vessel slowly sank deeper.

He was rescued from the masthead only minutes before it went beneath the surface.

Tahminen told police his vessel was swamped in heavy weather in Dixon Entrance north of the Queen Charlotte Islands, 500 miles north of Vancouver.

He was rescued by another fishboat and brought here for treatment of a leg injury.

PADDLING HIT

VANCOUVER — A whipping sentence imposed on a holdup man by County Court Judge R. A. Sargent has been criticized by a judge of the B.C. Court of Appeal.

The criticism comes from Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in written reasons handed down in the case of Montreal wrestler Arthur Dupont.

Dupont, 28, was sentenced to seven years and 20 strokes of the paddle by Judge Sargent for the April 8, 1961, holdup of a suburban motel proprietor.

Judge Sargent directed that Dupont be given 10 strokes of the paddle at the beginning of his sentence and the other 10 just before his release.

The appeal court two weeks ago removed the paddling from Dupont's sentence.

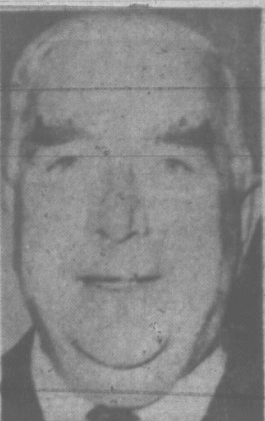

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Wilson said that whippings should be imposed as a deterrent and not as a measure of retribution.

FALSE TEETH

More Firmly In Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just apply a little PASTERIZIN to your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, soapy, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTERIZIN today at drug counters everywhere. Adv.

Family Attacked By Berserk Father

TORONTO (CP) — Leo T. Finucan, 49, a father of eight, ran amok with a hammer early today, killed his wife and seriously wounded three daughters before he was overpowered by two teen-age sons. Finucan, a heating contractor, then committed suicide by

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Robert S. Linworth, 1307 Lyall, $15 for inadequate emergency brake; Garfield R. Hemeon, 723 Field, $10 for inadequate muffler.

James Corbett, HMC's Ottawa, $35 for careless driving.

Nails on Road

PARIS (Reuters) — Dozens of passengers missed their planes Tuesday night because of nails scattered on the road leading to Orly International Airport. At one time about 100 vehicles were held up with punctured tires.

Hopes to Get Courthouse

The Maritime Museum of British Columbia is seeking quarters in the old courthouse building, Bastion Square, it was announced at the annual meeting of the museum society at 1500 Naden Tuesday night.

A letter has been sent to the Capital Improvement District Commission, asking that it recommend the move to the provincial government.

Commodore John Charles, who was re-elected chairman of the museum board, said he was optimistic the move could be

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Shades of Errol Flynn!

Patrice Wymore's lanky, handsome, sombrero-wearing, high-booted Texas finance, Mack Caudle, a Houston insurance broker, flew in and surprised her when she opened at the Latin Quarter... at the same time serving notice on the other boys as to who's her leading man.

It was well that he swash-buckled into her dressing room and embraced her. Pat wouldn't have recognized him even in his skinny-tie get-up—she's that near-sighted. Tall like her late husband Errol, he's also polite and soft-spoken. She has the ring, but they've postponed the wedding for a while. One reason: Pat, who's dimpled, leggy and lovely these days, wants to keep singing and dancing in night spots, while he wants her to be a leading Houston hostess.

JOAN CRAWFORD was so upset at rumors she was set to supplant Rockefeller she sent him a letter disclaiming responsibility for the stories, and adding, "I hope this hasn't hurt you or anyone connected with you."

Aside, Joan frankly said, "I only wish it were true! I haven't been that lucky. I've only met the governor once, and in a large group. But anybody would be delighted to have the governor as an escort."

REASON ZSA ZSA gave up "Tonight": she was scared stiff... Greta Thyssen's here from L.A. to see her guy, Jack LeVeen of TV, and sell a novel to Bernard Geiss... Now India's after movie production. It's putting up $2½ million to subsidize a Bob Hope film there. New Delhi, the New Hollywood?... Joe E. Lewis, now at the San Francisco Fair.

'Cattle Soon King' NANTON, Alta. (CP)—Hon. Alvin Hamilton, federal agriculture minister, says beef soon will displace wheat as "king" of Canada's agriculture.

JOAN CRAWFORD

mont, phoned beautiful singer Marilyn Mitchell at the Barlizon for Women to wish her luck resuming her career.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL Natalie Wood and Warren Beatty, at Leone's before flying to Cannes, asked the musicians to play "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing"... Sammy Davis Jr.'s "Golden Boy" producer found him a big East Side apt... Sally Ann Howes, who entertained at a press dinner for JFK, said there was no stuffiness at all. (When she'd sung for Ike, Mamie asked her to change the lyrics of "Steam Heat," because the Supreme Court judges "might" think they were too suggestive).

Cary Grant was in the "How to Succeed" audience... Hume Cronyn will repeat his "Big Fish, Little Fish" role in London with his wife Jessica Tandy... Local restaurants are forming baseball teams, and Joe DiMaggio promised to play for Danny's Hideaway. (Harold's Show Spot Bar says it'll retaliate by using Shelly Winters)... Anne Baxter's buying cattle in England for her Australian ranch.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan, and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

ask Andy HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to adults will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngsters who ask the first question answered each day receive a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Donnie McLaughlin, 11, Bossier City, La., for his question:

How Are Trees Grafted?

Some years ago, the soil of France was infested with a pesky insect which fed on the roots of the grape vines. The problem was solved by grafting. The beautiful hybrid tree rose is a result of plant grafting. Our best apples, plums and peaches grow from grafted trees. The trick of grafting is to arrange a merger between two growing plants.

We tend to think that all new plants grow from seeds, but the plant world has many different methods of multiplying, many different ways of growing. If you cut a geranium twig and put it in the soil, it will grow roots and become a new plant, just like the original. In grafting, two plants are made to grow together as one. A well-grafted tree has the good qualities of both original plants.

The growing part of a tree is a layer of cells just below the bark. It is called the cambium and year by year the cambium adds rows of new cells around the outside of a tree's trunk, branches and twigs. The miracle of grafting begins when we expose the cambium layer on a rooted tree trunk and the cambium layer on a twig from another tree. If the two layers of cambium are held together and sealed from the air, they will grow together.

The rooted tree is called the grafting stock and is usually a young sapling. The trunk is cut off a short distance from the ground. The grafting twig is called the scion and it is taken from a tree with qualities we want to reproduce.

There are several methods of grafting and placing the stock and the scion together. A short knife cut can be made down the trunk of the stock and the bark rolled back from both sides. The scion can be sliced with a sloping cut and its cambium placed on the exposed cambium of the stock.

The bark of the stock is then rolled over the scion. When the grafting is sealed with airtight glue, the two will grow together as one tree.

stock, produces apples just like those on the scion tree.

The cutting and placing together of the stock and scion may vary. But for a grafting to succeed, the two layers of cambium must be touching each other and sealed from the air until the merging growth has taken place. Sometimes one scion is used on a root stock, sometimes more. A hybrid rose tree is usually grafted with three scions.

Andy sends a Hammond's Library World Atlas to Shirley Spradley, age 14, Dunbar, W. Va., for her question:

What is hard water?

Precipitation which falls from the clouds is pure, or soft water for it gathers but a small amount of chemicals such as carbon dioxide and soot from the air. Our reservoirs, however, mostly gather their water from countless streams. This water has seeped through the soil and lapped the stony river beds. And water tends to dissolve mineral chemicals and carry them away.

Most of our water supplies, then, carry loads of these dissolved chemicals. We call this hard water. We cannot see these dissolved chemicals, but they react with soap to form grumpy scum instead of foamy bubbles. If hard water is run through certain salt chemicals, the dissolved chemicals are leached out and the water becomes soft.

Boys' Club Paint Job Approved By Council

Victoria Boys' Club today asked city public works committee to paint its headquarters in the old No. 2 Fire hall scarlet and white—the same colors it displayed in 1899 when it opened. Committee decided to call for tenders for painting the building at Yates and Camosun.

THE TV COMIC'S SON (relates Tom Zdar) rushed home from school and said, "I wasn't promoted, Pop, but something better—I was held over another 26 weeks!"... That's earl brother.

French Cabinet Splits

Five Members Quit In Slap at de Gaulle

(Times News Service) — PARIS—President de Gaulle's government split apart on the issue of European union today as all five cabinet ministers belonging to the Popular Republican Party abruptly resigned.

Pierre Pflimlin, national chairman of the Catholic Movement and a staunch advocate of close European union, led the MRP ministers out of the cabinet headed by Premier Georges Pompidou in protest against de Gaulle's European policies as expressed by the French president at his press conference Tuesday.

The cabinet had 29 members including the premier. A joint statement from the MRP ministers said a caucus Tuesday night decided to ask Pompidou to transmit their resignations to de Gaulle.

The surprise move was severe slap at de Gaulle. It came on the eve of a four-day trip through central France which de Gaulle has scheduled.

Besides Pflimlin, the ministers who resigned were: Maurice Schumann, minister delegate; Robert Buron, minister of public works and transports; Paul Jacquot, labor minister; and Joseph Fontanet, public health minister.

Pflimlin was state minister, a rank equivalent to deputy premier, in charge of co-operation with African states.

ISSUE STATEMENT
The five ministers called on de Gaulle this morning in advance of a regular cabinet session. They met with the president for half an hour to inform him of their decision, then left the Elysee Palace without attending the cabinet meeting.

A joint statement from the MRP ministers referred to de Gaulle's press conference statements on European policy.

It said:
"Yesterday's press conference revealed essential differences between the concepts of Gen. de Gaulle on the orientation and aims of European policy, and the ideas to which they (the MRP ministers) are attached, and these differences will not permit them to remain in the government."

De Gaulle at his press conference reiterated his opposition to the supernatural framework for European union strongly favored by the MRP.

Under such a supranational system, most decisions in a European union would be taken by majority vote of the member nations. But de Gaulle told the press conference Europe's nationalistic states should learn to live together in a loose confederation and later tighten their organization.

TROUBLES AHEAD?

The MRP decision was the first crack in the government formed just a month ago by Pompidou. It foreshadowed difficulties for Pompidou in the National Assembly, many of whose members oppose the new premier because he is not a member of the assembly.

De Gaulle said the future of Europe is based on Franco-German solidarity.

He leaves tonight on his first provincial tour of the year, which will officially begin Thursday when his train arrives at Figeac. He will return to Paris Sunday night.

U.S. Asks SEATO Allies To Aid Thailand Move

'EVERY RIGHT TO LAND' SAYS GREEN

TORONTO (CP) — The United States has every right to land troops in Thailand to protect the country against a Communist threat from neighboring Laos, External Affairs Minister Green said Tuesday night.

"But if they cross into Laos," he said in an interview, "that would be another matter."

"Thailand is a partner with the U.S. in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and the American troops are moving in there at the Thai government's request," he said.

LAOS

'No Strings' On Offer By Leftists

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Laotian neutralist and pro-Communist factions told the International Control Commission today they were willing to enter into negotiations for a coalition government with the rightist regime under conditions.

JCUC Chairman Avtar Singh of India, who flew from the neutralist capital of Khangay, Central Laos, disclosed this to reporters.

He said the leftists also said they did not intend to enter Houei Sai village, near the Thai border, if rightist troops did not attack.

The leftists also had no objections to the commission, composed of India, Canada and Poland, sending representatives to Houei Sai, but would not say now whether they were prepared to withdraw behind the cease-fire line drawn up last year.

They said they would create a dangerous situation if they entered Houei Sai, Singh added.

Previously the pro-Communists demanded that the key posts of defence and the interior should go to the neutralists before they would enter into negotiations on a coalition.

Hope for a diplomatic settlement in Laos was spurred by Russia's renewed pledge to support a cease-fire and work for creation of an independent neutral government.

WIRE BRIEFS

More Paris Strikes

PARIS (Reuters)—Post-office workers went on a 24-hour strike throughout France today as garbage men staged stoppages in Paris, leaving overflowing cans lining sidewalks.

Gunman Escapes Jail

CHICAGO (UPI) — Three jail prisoners, including a gunman William Triplett, admitted partner in the ambush slaying of union leader John Kilpatrick on Oct. 29, overpowered three guards today and escaped.

HOLLANDIA (UPI) — Dutch New Guinea units today captured a boatload of 20 armed Indonesians attempting a landing near Fak Fak in western New Guinea, Dutch military headquarters announced.

50% Tariff Slash

BONN (AP) — The West German cabinet today decided to cut tariffs by 50 per cent on cars from other Common Market countries in retaliation for price increases made by domestic producers.

Token Troops To Join Forces

(Times News Service)

WASHINGTON—American officials said today the United States has asked its allies in Southeast Asia to join it in sending military forces into Thailand.

They said Australia, New Zealand, Britain, Pakistan and the Philippines had been asked to "consider the dispatch of small forces to take their place alongside U.S. land, sea- and air forces being flown into the area near the border of Laos."

Most of the representatives here of the countries involved were said to have responded favorably to the request. But U.S. officials declined to give their reaction on a country-by-country basis.

MAKE BASIC

Allied acceptance of the U.S. proposal would have the effect of giving the operation a regional character and removing some of the element of unilateral American intervention.

Thailand also was understood to be willing to receive small elements from other member nations of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

So far as could be learned, the only member of the pact not asked for token forces was France. Gen. Charles de Gaulle's government has consistently refused to endorse allied military action in the area in which Paris has now lost virtually all its influence.

A dozen U.S. Air Force jet fighter bombers flew into Bangkok today as the spearhead of a new U.S. Southeast Asian command to help defend Thailand from any Communist thrust from Laos.

U.S. officials announced that the jets began landing in this pro-Western country as three ships carrying U.S. Marines steamed up the Gulf of Siam toward Bangkok. The marines will bolster American troops already in Thailand.

Knifer Kills Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Juanita Reinhardt, 19, was fatally stabbed while walking near her home in Vancouver's East End early today.

She died in hospital after telling police she did not recognize the man she saw lurking in the darkness about 2:30 a.m.

Mrs. Reinhardt, mother of an 18-month-old child, said she ran across the street. The man gave chase and lunged at her with a knife.

KILLER NEVER FOUND

Mrs. Evelyn Rochee, 39, mother of two, was slashed to death in a lane a block from her home on the night of April 3, 1958. She was stabbed five times and the killer was never apprehended.

Helmut Reinhardt, husband of the murdered woman, visited her in hospital this morning a short time before she died.

"It's lucky she was able to talk," he said later. "We have many friends and now it appears we have some enemies." Today's fatal stabbing brings the number of murders in the city this year to eight. Murder charges have been laid in six of the cases.

hockey supporters will have to wait a few days to learn more of their chances to obtain a professional club for next season.

A spokesman for the Pacific National Exhibition today described as "very close" three offers to buy Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

PNE directors are expected to take two or three days to make a decision on the offers, all backed by National Hockey League clubs.

One, by Harry Ornest, is supported by Toronto Maple Leafs. If Ornest is successful, it would erase the hopes of a Victoria group bidding for a WHL franchise and counting on the Leafs to supply players.

Four bids were made for the Canucks' franchise, but one was said to be a token offer is in hospital.

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

MAY 16

A meeting of indignant citizens was held to protest passage of the so-called "stamp act" which would impose "certain duties" on writings and deeds. Most of the citizens were business men who feared the obstruction of commercial transactions. A resolution viewing the proposed act with alarm was passed unanimously. Thomas Harris, M.P.P., was chairman of the meeting.

The large flag staff which is to be installed on Beacon Hill was towed to the beach at the foot of the hill by the gunboat Grappler. "It is to be raised on May 24."

Pilots for the harbors of Esquimalt and Victoria asked for an increase in pilot dues, and provision of a suitable boat to take them out to vessels in the Race Rocks area.

PHILIP DRESSED DOWN BY TOP TRIPE DRESSER

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP)—The tripe dressers of Britain are annoyed with Prince Philip. He had told newspapermen in Montreal Monday that if they write that his work as chairman of The Second Commonwealth Study Conference is "tripe" that's legitimate criticism.

"This is the third time he has talked like this—it has got to stop," said Bob Hume, former president of Britain's National Association of Tripe Dressers.

"Tripe is not a joke. It is a valuable foodstuff. And its standing is not helped by slipshod talk like this."

Hume said he will ask a tripe dressers' conference in Manchester next week to adopt a resolution urging the prince not to use tripe again in a derogatory sense.

'I'm Responsible' Salan Tells Court

PARIS (Reuters) — Raoul Salan today accepted "complete" responsibility for the activities of the terrorist Secret Army Organization.

The 62-year-old former general stood up on the second day of his trial here and declared in a preliminary statement to the high military court:

"I am the chief of the OAS (Secret Army). My responsibility therefore is complete. I accept it as I do not intend to break with a line of conduct followed during 42 years of active service."

"I am not a gang leader but a French general of a victorious army, not a defeated army."

After reading a 24-page statement since Dec. 1, 1956, when he took command of the armed forces in Algeria, Salan said:

"I shall henceforth remain silent."

Salan said he "made a mistake" and "fooled the people of Algeria" when he supported President de Gaulle's return to power in 1958 when the Fourth Republic fell over the war against Algerian nationalists.

"To repair this mistake I had to remain in the midst of the people and then to take the leadership of the Secret Army Organization."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is a man "running scared," former Liberal health minister Paul Martin told an audience of 150 at Oak Bay Junior High School Tuesday night.

This would account for his "unworthy comments" last week on Opposition Leader L. B. Pearson's record against Soviet tyranny while Canada's UN representative.

Mr. Martin said the prime minister had violated a treasured heritage of office in attacking Mr. Pearson.

"Recent comments of Mr. Diefenbaker regarding Mr. Pearson and Soviet imperialism and Communist aggression are unworthy of any Canadian, let alone a man who prides himself," said Mr. Martin, his sentence lost amid applause.

"They are indicative of a man who is going to face defeat," he added.

The ex-Liberal minister appeared in support of Victoria candidate Foster Isherwood, coming to the city by charter aircraft after a whirlwind visit to Port Alberni.

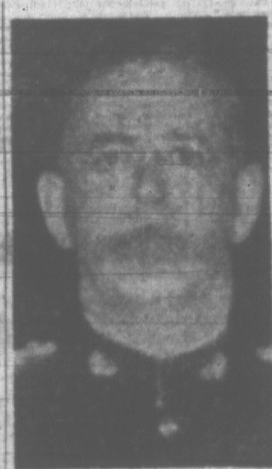

Mr. Martin said the prime minister "knew what he was saying was not an accurate representation of the facts," and quoted from the record for more than 12 years at the UN.

MAJOR DETERRENT

He said the Liberal party, under Mr. Pearson and Mr. St. Laurent, was instrumental in the formation of NATO, the single most effective deterrent to Soviet imperialism in eastern Europe.

(Mr. Diefenbaker has since denied that his remarks should have been interpreted widely as a personal criticism of Mr. Pearson's "softness" with Communism.) See story Page 2.

Defence counsel R. K. Laishley suggested that aside from the bracelet, there was also a parcel of gold which Maj. Platt had to carry and which the woman said she would use to pay expenses in Saigon.

Maj. Duhaut said he was not aware of any such package. The woman has been identified only as a Madame Tolmer who was granted passage on the plane taking Canadian military personnel to Saigon.

ENVY OF MANY A CITY TEEN-AGER is young Don Alberg, 1516 Mt. Douglas Cross Road, who has just welcomed another addition to his family of animals. The newcomer is a three-day-old Palomino foal Don is showing here with the assistance of the colt's mother, Mona Lisa, and his pet dog, Sandy, a sleek Weimaraner. Out behind the barn Don also has two registered Angus beef, a heifer and a steer. How does he look after them all? "Well, it keeps me pretty busy, all right," Don admits as he lists the clubs to which his animals gain him admittance. With Mona (and now the foal, who was sired by George Porter's registered Palomino stallion, Oregon City) Don is active in the Mt. Douglas Junior Trail Riders' Club, with Sandy he goes to Dog Obedience School, and with those Black Angus he works in the 4H Beef Cattle Club.—(Times Photo.)

WINNERS ELUDE $200 PRIZE

Officials of Victoria's centennial committee went to the people again today in an effort to find one of those elusive, lucky souvenir bills. With the jackpot built up to $200, centennial officials went out on the street and asked the people outside the office at the bus stop to name a page, column and listing from the directory for them to phone. They phoned Mrs. Fred Kitchener, 142 Virago Crescent, but she didn't have one. The search continues.

City Traffic Engineer Quits Post

Said Aftermath Of Shake-up

By JOHN MIKA

City traffic engineer Norman Worsley quit today after 12 years service in City Hall and speculation was rife that more resignations would follow in the engineering department.

Mr. Worsley's resignation—effective immediately—was handed in Tuesday morning and he spent this afternoon clearing out his desk. His salary had been $700 a month. One of the most popular section heads in City Hall, Mr. Worsley was part of a developing "action team" which did most of the work behind recent city planning projects. His resignation hit City Hall like a bombshell but he declined to reveal his reason.

WILL SEEK WORK Mr. Worsley—who is 39, married and father of three children—said he had no immediate plans except to seek work in this area. A native Victorian, he is both a professional engineer and a professional surveyor.

Although he would not discuss his resignation, it obviously was a protest—first concrete symptom of rumored discontent in the department. It follows a departmental shake-up last week which had overtones of comic opera in its suddenness.

In that move, city architect Rod Clark was shifted out of his office overnight as head of the planning and inspection division and designated as a planning officer. He was replaced by William and sewer engineer William Jorgensen.

It was preceded by a stormy department heads' meeting which produced shouting audible beyond the closed doors, according to repeated rumors. Ald. Michael Griffin, chairman of traffic committee, said he would not comment on the resignation because it was an administrative matter.

He said he did not know whether the traffic engineer would obtain a city engineer as a replacement. City manager C. C. Wyatt said he had no comment on the resignation.

DID NOT ASK Asked if it was a forced or voluntary resignation, he replied: "We didn't ask for it."

Mr. Worsley was educated at St. Michael's School here and Brentwood College, graduating from the University of B.C. with a civil engineer's diploma in 1950.

The same year, he entered the city engineer's department in the surveying section. In 1955 he was placed at the head of the traffic section, the post he held until today.

Cadet Inspection Major-General A. E. Potts will take the annual inspection of the 2453 Equinall (PPCLI) Cadet Corps at Work Point Barracks, 2 p.m., Sunday.

Trophies for all-round proficiency, shooting and sports will be awarded. Dominion of Canada Rifle Association of Canada will be presented to 11 marksmen.

A woman was fined $300 by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today when she was convicted of selling liquor illegally.

Court was told two police officers in plain clothes went to the premises at 722 Market Street, and were admitted by the woman, Joan Dunbar.

A number of people there ordered rounds of drinks and were served rye whisky and rum. The policemen ordered drinks and paid for them with marked money.

Defence counsel Mrs. Marney Stevenson contended there was no case against her client because the marked money was not found in a search made later.

Magistrate Ostler said the marked notes could have been concealed during the search.

25,000 See Fair In Opening Days

By JOHN BASSETT

Record crowds continued to throng through the assorted sections of the Victoria Centennial Exhibition Tuesday, with conservative estimates at 25,000 persons for the first two days.

The group which continues to outshine all others would appear to be the Trinidad Steel Band... they toil with their modified oil drums in the crowded confines of the Curling Rink, and each time they emit their sounds the rink becomes "the place to go"...

Pleasure Boat Event Set For Elk Lake Race Meet

Owners of small pleasure craft will have a chance for the first time to compete in the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association's annual races at Elk Lake on Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Speakers for the association said that all powered boats to a minimum of 14 feet would be eligible to race, no matter what type of motor they carried.

Meanwhile, entries in the speedboat classes have been received from Vancouver and all over the Island, and more from the lower mainland and the United States are expected before entry deadline on Friday.

Eight races are scheduled for Sunday's event, sponsored by the association in conjunction with the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee.

Youngsters with pleasure craft who would like to enter the races should contact the secretary, Bob Bell, at GR 9-1032.

254 Acres on Beach, Balance 'By Choice'

Deputy Recreation Minister David Turner today described as "cockeyed" a morning newspaper story that the B.C. government has given away $260,000 worth of timber for $50,000 worth of parkland.

He explained that the recreation department is making an agreement with a logging company for a straight exchange of $260,000 worth of timber for $50,000 worth of parkland.

The deal was worked out so the department could acquire 254 acres on Long Beach, 10 miles south of Tofino. The land is appraised at $50,000.

In exchange the government has offered Bedwell River Timber Co., the owners, $50,000 worth of timber in Strathcona Park. But the company said it would not be economically feasible to cut such a small area.

Bedwell is owned by Sam Craig, a Tofino logging operator for many years.

EQUAL VALUE Now the government is offering Mr. Craig the $260,000 worth of timber provided it gets land of an equal value in exchange.

The recreation department will choose the parkland it wants for the extra $210,000. It could be anywhere in the province—possibly in the Victoria area—said Dr. Turner.

Mr. Craig would have to buy it and hand it over before he could cut any more than $50,000 worth of timber.

"It's like buying a car. The $50,000 is just the down payment," said Dr. Turner.

He said the area in Strathcona Park to be logged is along the watershed of the Bedwell River, at the southwest corner of the huge park.

It was half-logged years ago and contains two abandoned mines, he said.

DR. DAVID TURNER... good acquisition

"As a wilderness recreation area it's worth nothing. It's completely expendable."

The Long Beach land the department is getting includes a mile and a half waterfrontage at Schooner Cove. Land on either side of it was already government-owned, and there now will be an unbroken four-mile stretch of beach for future development.

"This is one of the most exciting acquisitions since I've been with the department," said Dr. Turner.

He said it will ensure forever that there will be a "great" recreational area at Long Beach. The land is five miles north of a 50-campsite development at Green Point which will be open about June 1.

Temporary Club Room For Elderly Persons 'Duty of Government'

By AB KENT

Provision of a stop-gap meeting room for the city's elderly should be a provincial government responsibility, a Victoria Labor Council delegate said today.

Gus Gildemeester, VLC delegate to Victoria Senior Citizens' Campaign Council, said he noted that almost a year had passed since he first suggested a street-level meeting place in a downtown location where senior citizens could meet, have a cup of tea, and while away a sociable hour.

"It's no good having an out of the way place, up a flight of stairs, because many of these people can't climb stairs," Mr. Gildemeester said.

"All that's needed is a place where they can go to be together. The government should provide that. The Senior Citizens' Council can maintain it—pay the high bills."

When he first raised the idea through the labor council he suggested a businessman or group of men could provide an empty store for the purpose.

There has never been an offer, he said.

It was not his intention to have a permanent location because eventually there will be senior citizens' recreation centres built by joint municipal-provincial effort.

Meanwhile, there is nothing for the elderly people whose limited incomes force them to live in humble circumstances mostly in the downtown area.

Q.—Who was Peter Stuyvesant?—L.C.H.

A. He was the last Dutch governor of the colony of New Netherland, now known much better as New York. Born in 1592, he came to the colony in 1646, and his rule soon became autocratic and tyrannical. "We derive our authority from God... not from the pleasure of a few ignorant subjects," he said on one occasion. He died in 1672, eight years after the British took over the colony.

MONTE ROBERTS

I have to hand a missive from Mrs. Florence Barr which should, once and for all, dispose of the base canard that animal lovers are so intent on being kind to animals they have become bereft of a sense of humor.

(I have been accused of this myself, being an animal lover from 'way back, and am happy to produce proof it just ain't so.)

Mrs. Barr sent along a recent copy of the official publication of the Cats' Protection League, Prestbury Lodge, 29 Church Street, Slough, Bucks. (Need I say, England?)

And I'd like you to read a few of the advertisements seeking homes for cats and kittens (all of them, by CPL rule, must be neutered before being put up for adoption).

● Mother and daughter seek accommodation. Separate rooms essential.

● Young brothers training as all-in wrestlers need lodgings with space for violent practice.

● Exquisite, sensitive, highly-bred lady offers her companionship to true kindred soul; would prefer owner of fried fish shop or similar.

● Gentleman of the old school, handsome, strong and determined, seeks rooms near good hunting country.

● Small, arrogant cat wants home with meek, gentle people.

● Efficient maids offer services, light mousework and dishwashing; would consider dairy work.

It's a pity all these wonderbar cats are available only to the residents over 'ome. I'd be happy to have any one or pair of them come stay at our house.

Except the small, arrogant cat who wants home with meek, gentle people.

That's the way things are at our house right now.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A fine of $250 was imposed by Magistrate William Ostler in Saanich police court Tuesday on Peter Brittain, HMCS Beacon Hill, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The weekend after a police car had chased him north on Douglas at speeds in excess of 35 miles an hour, police said.

Brittain was prohibited from driving for six months.

The Port Angeles ferry MY Coho will start its summer schedule of four round trips daily Saturday, instead of May 24 as previously announced, in anticipation of heavy holiday weekend traffic.

Sailings from Victoria will be at 6 and 10:15 a.m., 2:30 and 6:30 p.m.

Esquimalt Legion holds its monthly meeting this evening at 7:30 in the Legion Hall.

St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society will meet in the Ardenne Hotel Lounge of Holyrood House Thursday at 8 p.m. Officers will be elected and a film on a tour of England and Europe will be shown.

Knights and Dames of the Thistle will meet on Friday at 8 p.m. in Norway House, Hillside Avenue. A social will follow the business session.

THURSDAY MEETINGS Victoria Rotary Club: Empress Hotel, 12:10 Noon, speaker George Gray on "Goodwill Industries."

Oak Bay Kiwanis: Oak Bay Beach Hotel, 6:15 p.m., speaker G. E. Welbourne on "Wheels of Yesterday."

Victoria Klansmen: Net Loft, 6:15 p.m., Professor Burchill of Royal Roads Academy.

Beaver Kiwanis: Tully Hotel, 7:30 a.m. Roy Parrett will show a film "The Saga of the Sudbury."

Victoria Optimist Club: Yarrow Building, 12:10 noon, committee reports.

Saanich is determined to try to make its "tree-tubs" as famous as the city's hanging baskets.

The tubs constructed to contain trees for the beautification of Douglas Street, will also have flowers next year, Reeve Stanley Murphy said today.

He said bulbs will be planted in the tubs at the base of the trees in the Fall.

A total of 104 trees will be planted along the newly three-quarter of mile section of Cloverdale Avenue, the reeve disclosed.

There will also be some tree planting on Reynolds after it has been reconstructed this year, he said.

Unoccupied Boats Found at Sooke; One Wrecked

Two unoccupied boats—one wrecked—have been found near Sooke in the past 24 hours and RCAF Air Sea Rescue and U.S. Coast Guard authorities are investigating their origins.

The wrecked boat was found on the beach between Mary's Hill and Becher Bay late Tuesday afternoon. Only the bottom and part of one side were intact.

The 18-foot vessel carried the markings "CQ, Washington" and "White Cove".

The coast guard says the boat probably broke its moorings and drifted from its Washington coast.

The second boat—a 14-ft. inboard—was found drifting four miles south of Church Island at 6 a.m. today and was towed into Sooke Harbor by a fishboat.

Sooke RCMP said the boat has a 3½-h.p. Briggs and Stratton inboard engine, a green bottom and white sides, and has the name "Chum" painted in red on the side.

It is undamaged.

The quartermaster general for the Canadian Army, Maj. Gen. R. W. Moncel, will inspect Work Point Barracks May 24 in the course of a tour of the Western Command.

About 100 junior officer cadets from the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, spent today at sea aboard the RCN Pacific Command destroyer escorts HMC Ships Saguenay and Fraser.

During a cruise in Juan de Fuca Strait, operational functions of the ships were demonstrated, including a jack-stay transfer.

French Film Week terminates tonight at the Art Gallery at 8, with the French Canadian Club as hosts. Films to be shown include: "Marius Barbeau Le Folklore Canadien-Francais" and "L'Extremite Nord Canadien La Faune et la Flore."

Victoria Cymrodorion (Welsh) Society will hold its annual gymnafa ganu (song festival) at Garden City United Church, Carey Road, next Sunday at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The Carey bus leaves Yates and Douglas at 1:15 and 5:15 p.m.

French Cabinet Splits

(Times News Services)

PARIS—President de Gaulle's government split apart on the issue of European union today as all five cabinet ministers belonging to the Popular Republican Party abruptly resigned.

Pierre Pflimlin, national chairman of the Catholic Movement Republican Populaire and a staunch advocate of close European union, led the MRP ministers out of the cabinet headed by Premier Georges Pompidou in protest against de Gaulle's European policies as expressed by the French president at his press conference Tuesday.

The cabinet had 29 members including the premier. A joint statement from the MRP ministers said a caucus Tuesday night decided to ask Pompidou to transmit their resignations to de Gaulle.

The surprise move was a severe slap at de Gaulle. It came on the eve of a four-day trip through central France which de Gaulle has scheduled.

Besides Pflimlin, the ministers who resigned were Maurice Schumann, minister delegate; Robert Buron, minister of public works and transports; Paul Bacon, labor minister; and Joseph Fontanet, public health minister.

Pflimlin was state minister, a rank equivalent to deputy premier, in charge of co-operation with African states.

CITY DRIVER HURT

Bird Smashes Into Goggles

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A bird crashed into the goggles of Ed Kostenuk today, ending his hope of being the first Canadian in the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race since the Second World War.

MAJ. W. A. PLATT accused smuggler

The 33-year-old Victoria, B.C., driver definitely is out of the race, said Dr. Thomas A. Hanna, speedway medical director.

Dr. Hanna said the plastic goggle lens was smashed against Kostenuk's left eye, scratching the cornea and causing some bleeding around the iris. He also had an enormous "black eye."

Kostenuk was on a practice run in the Leader Special which Roger Ward drove to third place in last year's race. The Canadian hoped to qualify in time trials Saturday or Sunday.

He did not lose control of the car and drove over a mile to the pits where he was given emergency treatment and then taken to an eye specialist.

"He'll be all right," Dr. Hanna said, "but he'll have to take it easy for a few days and he definitely won't be able to drive here this year."

Kostenuk said he blanked out for an instant when the bird struck him but he could see the white line on the inside of the track when his senses cleared. He said he "dived for the line," hit the brakes and followed the line to the pits.

He had been timed at 140 miles an hour on the previous lap.

The Canadian didn't know exactly what had happened until crewmen found feathers on his goggles.

'No Strings' On Offer By Leftists

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Laotian nationalist and pro-Communist factions told the International Control Commission today they were willing to enter into negotiations for a coalition government with the rightist regime without conditions.

ICUC Chairman Avtar Singh of India, who flew from the neutralist capital of Khangghay, Central Laos, disclosed this to reporters.

He said the leftists also said they did not intend to enter Houei Sai village, near the Thai border, if rightist troops did not attack.

The leftists also had no objections to the commission, composed of India, Canada and Poland, sending representatives to Houei Sai, but would not say now whether they were prepared to withdraw behind the cease-fire line drawn up last year.

They said they would create a dangerous situation if they entered Houei Sai, Singh added.

Previously the pro-Communist demanded that the key posts of defence and the interior should go to the neutralists before they would enter into negotiations on a coalition.

Hope for a diplomatic settlement in Laos was spurred by Russia's renewed pledge to support a cease-fire and work for creation of an independent neutral government.

COMES THE RECKONING—AND THE RAZOR

Victoria Centennial Exhibition beard growing contest was climaxed Tuesday night with Howard Waring, 2623 Millstream (centre) being chosen best of the out-crop. He is flanked by runners-up Sven Rasmussen, left, 8449 W. Saanich Road, and Harold Hall, 5925 Oldfield Road, the 1958 B.C. Centennial winner. All contestants began their beards after Jan. 1, the start of Victoria's Centennial Year. While Waring may be a champ at the Fair, he's a chump at home—his wife says the beard's gotta go, and fast. Ironically, all three gents live outside the city. (Times Photo by John Bassett.)

ECM Entry Of Britain Closer, Heath

LONDON (Reuters)—The way is open for negotiation of a solution to the problem of Britain's entry into the European Common Market, Deputy Foreign Secretary Heath said today.

Heath gave the House of Commons a progress report on negotiations for British entry. He is chief British negotiator. Issues have been clearly defined over the whole field and the way is "now open for the negotiation of a solution," Heath said.

'EVERY RIGHT TO LAND' SAYS GREEN

TORONTO (CP)—The United States has every right to land troops in Thailand to protect the country against a Communist threat from neighboring Laos, External Affairs Minister Green said Tuesday night.

"But if they cross into Laos," he said in an interview, "that would be another matter."

"Thailand is a partner with the U.S. in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and the American troops are moving in there at the Thai government's request," he said.

It's a Waiting Game For Hockey Franchise

(Special to The Times)
VANCOUVER—Victoria hockey supporters will have to wait a few days to learn more of their chances to obtain a professional club for next season.

Four bids were made for the Canucks' franchise, but one was said to be a token offer from a Vancouver sports writer. (See earlier story, page 12.)

PNE directors are expected to take two or three days to make a decision on the offers, all backed by National Hockey League clubs.

One, by Harry Ornest, is supported by Toronto Maple Leafs. If Ornest is successful, it would erase the hopes of a Victoria group bidding for a WHL franchise and counting on the Leafs to supply players.

Molester Sought

NELSON (CP)—Police were hunting today for a molester for questioning in the disappearance of five-year-old Mark Huiberts.

An order to pick up the man was issued after parents of another boy told police their nine-year-old son was molested Tuesday afternoon.

Fire Chief E. S. Owens decided at noon today to call off the search.

The boy was last seen late in the afternoon, playing near a bridge across the Cottonwood Creek which empties into Kootenay Lake.

Eighth Murder Of Year

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Juanita Reinhardt, 19, was fatally stabbed while walking near her home in Vancouver's East End early today.

She died in hospital after telling police she did not recognize the man she saw lurking in the darkness about 2:30 a.m. Mrs. Reinhardt, mother of an 18-month-old child, said she ran across the street. The man gave chase and lunged at her with a knife.

The stabbing took place about 10 blocks from the scene of a similar knife attack which took the life of another city mother.

KILLER NEVER FOUND

Mrs. Evelyn Roche, 39, mother of two, was slashed to death in a lane a block from her home on the night of April 3, 1958. She was stabbed five times and the killer was never apprehended.

Helmut Reinhardt, husband of the murdered woman, visited her in hospital this morning a short time before she died.

"It's lucky she was able to talk," he said later. "We have many friends and now it appears we have some enemies."

Today's fatal stabbing brings the number of murders in the city this year to eight. Murder charges have been laid in six of the cases.

IN THAILAND

U.S. Asks Allies For Aid

(Times News Service)

WASHINGTON—American officials said today the United States has asked it allies in Southeast Asia to join it in sending military forces into Thailand.

They said Australia, New Zealand, Britain, Pakistan and the Philippines had been asked to "consider the dispatch of small forces to take their place alongside U.S. land, sea and air forces being flown into the area near the border of Laos."

Most of the representatives here of the countries involved were said to have responded favorably to the request. But U.S. officials declined to give their reaction on a country-by-country basis.

MAKE REGIONAL

Allied acceptance of the U.S. proposal would have the effect of giving the operation a regional character and removing some of the element of unilateral American intervention. Thailand invited the U.S. forces but it was understood to be willing to receive small elements from other member nations of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

So far as could be learned, the only member of the pact not asked for token forces was France. Gen. Charles de Gaulle's government has consistently refused to endorse allied military action in the area in which Paris has now lost virtually all its influence.

A dozen U.S. Air Force jet fighters flew into Bangkok today as the spearhead of a new U.S. Southeast Asian command to help defend Thailand from any Communist thrust from Laos.

The five ministers called on de Gaulle this morning in advance of a regular cabinet session. They met with the president for half an hour to inform him of their decision, then left the Elysee Palace without attending the cabinet meeting.

A joint statement from the MRP ministers referred to de Gaulle's press conference statements on European policy.

It said: "Yesterday's press conference revealed essential differences between the concepts of Gen. de Gaulle on the orientation and aims of European policy, and the ideas to which they (the MRP ministers) are attached, and these differences will not permit them to remain in the government."

De Gaulle at his press conference reiterated his opposition to the supranational framework for European unity strongly favored by the MRP.

Under such a supranational system, most decisions in a European union would be taken by majority vote of the member nations. But de Gaulle told the press conference Europe's nationalistic states should learn to live together in a loose confederation and later tighten their organization.

TROUBLES AHEAD?

The MRP decision was the first crack in the government formed just a month ago by Pompidou. It foreshadowed difficulties for Pompidou in the National Assembly, many of whose members oppose the new premier because he is not a member of the assembly.

De Gaulle said the future of Europe is based on Franco-German solidarity.

He leaves tonight on his first provincial tour of the year, which will officially begin Thursday when his train arrives at Figeac. He will return to Paris Sunday night.

'Responsible,' Salan Tells Court

PARIS (Reuters) — Raul Salan today accepted "complete" responsibility for the activities of the terrorist Secret Army Organization.

The 62-year-old former general stood up on the second day of his trial here and declared in a preliminary statement to the high military court:

"I am the chief of the OAS (Secret Army). My responsibility therefore is complete. I accept it as I do not intend to break with a line of conduct followed during 42 years of active service.

"I am not a gang leader but a French general of a victorious army, not a defeated army."

After reading a 24-page statement, in which he reviewed events since Dec. 1, 1956, when he took command of the armed forces in Algeria, Salan said:

"I shall henceforth remain silent."

Salan said he "made a mistake" and "fooled the people of Algeria" when he supported President de Gaulle's return to power in 1958 when the Fourth Republic fell over the war against Algerian nationalists.

"To repair this mistake I had to remain in the midst of the people and then to take the leadership of the Secret Army Organization."

Family Attacked By Berserk Father

TORONTO (CP) — Leo T. Finucan, 49, a father of eight, ran amok with a hammer early today, killed his wife and seriously wounded three daughters before he was overpowered by two teen-age sons. Finucan, a heating contractor, then committed suicide by cutting his throat in front of the two boys.

Finucan's wife Alma, 43, died in hospital of multiple brain injuries three hours after being bludgeoned.

One of the three daughters, Adele, 9, is in serious condition with head injuries and is not expected to live.

The two other girls, Mary Lou, 20, and Joanne, 12, suffered severe head injuries.
